"South-eastern Pennsylvania, during our colonial period was the prolific hive from which the swarms of Swiss and German settlers of America almost exclusively came, who, during the latter years of that period and during the first several decades of our national existence, migrated westward and planted the seed of the Teutonic element of our population in the middle west, the south-west, the north-west and the far west, and whose descendants have sprung from them by millions and have largely moulded the character of that vast empire, down to this day. It may be truthfully said that the pioneer Swiss and Germans of south-eastern Pennsylvania did as much for America and lived as nobly and upheld the pure religion of our nation as faithfully as did the Puritan Fathers of New England."

The coming of the Romans in the early part of the Christian era marks the beginning of the first real history of the land between Lakes Geneva and Constance. In the first century before Christ the race known as the Celts had spread across Switzerland. They were in the Canton of Geneva, in the Jura valley, in the region of Basel, in Vallis, in the high Alps east of the St. Gotthard and in the long valley of the Rhine as far as Lake Constance. The small hills and flat lands extending from Lake Geneva to Lake Constance were covered with many descendants of the Helvetians, who according to Caesar were the mightiest and bravest of the Celtic or Gallic clans. Even in former centuries they had inhabited the stretches of land north-east of the Rhine as far as the Main River and had proved their strength with the Germans.

But in the year 58 B.C. the Helvetians were driven back by Julius Caesar and forced into the Roman army to help protect the Roman Empire from the Germans. General Drusus in the year 13 B.C. was sent into Gaul from where he pushed across the Rhine in pursuit of the Germans. He was the first Roman general to force his way to the German Ocean or the North Sea. He annexed the Kingdom of the Netherlands to the Roman Empire and even constructed a canal from the Rhine to what is thought to have been a part of Zuider See. He established a military camp at the confluence of the Mosel and Rhine rivers. It was called Confluentes, which later became Covelenz, then Cobelenz and finally Coblenz. Mainz was a Celtic village on the Rhine not far from the influx of the Main river. Its Celtic name became latinized as Maguntiacum. Drusus added a Roman camp on the opposite side of the river and later a bridge connected the two. In the city of Mainz today is still standing a monument believed to have been erected by the Roman soldiers in honor of General Drusus. The Germans call it the Eigelstein and it stands in the citadel on the site of the original old Roman Castrum or castle.

Under Drusus and his brother Tiberius the puzzling mountain country of Switzerland became a part of the Roman Empire. Within a few decades the Celtic stems on the north side of the Swiss Alps had sacrificed their political independence to the Romans. From the year 15 A.D. on the whole of what is now Switzerland was a Roman province. It had entered the domain of the ancient world.

The Romans developed in the newly acquired territory not only a political government, but also a cultural activity. They opened up a network of roads, some of which were new, some the old Celtic paths. The ancient Alp passes were widened. They were made to center in one broad avenue which ran along the right bank of the Rhine from Lake Constance into Alsace. Caesar surveyed the Alps in the south-west and started a road over the Great St. Bernard along the Rhone river to Lake Geneva. These were the two main arteries in Switzerland. They formed the basis for many side roads. The Rhone river was at that time called the Rhodanus and the Great St. Bernard was a high mountain road or pass. It began in Italy where is now the town of Aosta near the Swiss border and it extended for over fifty miles into the Swiss Canton of Valais to Martigny. Caesar called the region the "Alpis Poenina". He said he wished "that the pass by which traders have been accustomed to go at great risk and with very high transport charges, should be opened." Ten centuries later the illustrious French preacher and monk Bernard founded a hospice there, and since then it has been named for him.

An important road led from the Walensee to Lake Zurich and to Vindonissa. Vindonissa was a fortress at the junction of the Aar and the Reuss rivers. It was in the Canton of Aargau where is today the city of Brugg. Roman troops were stationed in numerous camps along the Rhine as far as Mainz to guard the German borders. After the middle of the 1st century the twenty-first Roman legion and the eleventh legion relieved each other at Vindonissa and pushed south into the Canton of Lucerne and in the direction of Zurich to Affoltern. They penetrated into the Canton of Thurgau along Lake Constance and into the Canton of Schaffhausen. Greeks, Spaniards and Italians composed their ranks. The Helvetians were used as substitute troops in their own country. Toward the end of the 1st century the eleventh legion had spread itself on the right side of the Rhine into what is now Germany. From that time on there was a century and a half of peace. In that period the influence of the Roman Empire was the greatest. The language was enriched by many Latin word formations. Today countless monuments of Roman origin still stand, gravestones, ruins of fortresses, castles and amphitheatres, stone and tiled houses and marble temples, all of which show the fine manner of living and the splendor of the Romans.

The Roman influence was strongest in the western part of Switzerland. There was a greater migration of the Italian people to those parts and a freer development in language and customs. The cultivation of the soil was greater than at any previous time. Fruit trees and plants were brought in from the Orient. Vineyards were planted along the Geneva shores. Trade flourished. The stations on the military roads were not only the camps of the army and civil offices but they grew into prosperous cities, which were ornamented with buildings of artistic design. Many of their walls still stand today.

The religion of the Gauls merged with that of the old Greek-Roman church. The Romans took up the newly found culture of the Helvetians, and they in turn respected the worship of the Roman gods. Even the worship of Isis, which came from Egypt to Italy found place here. Before the 4th century Christianity had spread into Switzerland. It was not brought in by the Roman army. It came from Gaul to Geneva. The oldest Swiss legends tell of a "Theban Legion", under the leadership of Mauritius or Maurice, which was sent to reinforce the Gallic army of the Roman Emperor Maximian Herculus about the year 287. When it was discovered that Maurice and his soldiers were Christians, the legion was forced to disband, and many of them were massacred. A basilica was erected at the place where Maurice suffered death, and it is today the Abbey of Agaunum, or St. Maurice-en-Valais. It is near Martigny. From this time on Christianity spread in Switzerland. It penetrated to Chur or Coire, and from camp to camp to Bregenz and Arbon on Lake Constance. In the middle of the 5th century it had a firm footing, though Roman power and culture opposed it.

The Celts were the first known inhabitants of Central Europe. But very early in the Christian era many Teutonic tribes had made their appearance. They came to be grouped by historians according to their early geographic locations. The term "Franks" was given to those German tribes who lived on the Middle and Lower Rhine and in what is now Hesse. In the 3rd and 4th centuries they made repeated attacks on the Celtic Treviri, who were in the basin of the Mosel river and for whom the city of Treves or Trier was named. The term "Allemani" was used collectively for those Germans living in south-west Germany, south of Hesse, and who came into conflict with the Romans in the 3rd century. The term also included the Schwaben or Suevi or Swabians, one of their largest groups. There were the Burgundians who had come down from Sweden by way of the Vistula river and had lived for some time in the land between the Vistula and the Oder. In the 5th century they penetrated into the region about Lyons and Geneva in the valley of the Rhone river. There were the Eastgoths, who also had come from Sweden, but who had crossed Poland and were settled for several centuries in southern Russia and the Crimea. They owned large fleets on the upper part of the Black Sea, and they liked to sail out into the waters of the Aegaen Sea and sometimes around into the Adriatic much to the consternation of the people of Rome and Italy. There were the Westgoths who had located in Gaul and in Spain, and in Holland the Heruli and the Batavians who had come under the rule of the Romans; there were the Saxons, said to be the most warlike of all of them, who lived in "Old Saxony", then the country around Hanover; there were the Frisians, the Angles, the Jutes, the Danes, the Lombards, and we should not forget the piratical Norse Vikings.

It is said the mode of migrating of these stalwart people was to build houses on wagons, in which they put the women and children and all their belongings. The men walked alongside the wagons driving the cattle, while the fighting men rode on horseback in advance of the processions. When they moved from one place to another they did not necessarily quit the place they were moving from, some often remained behind.

The Germans were not accustomed to living in cities. They preferred to build single estates, or they lived in villages in the midst of extensive fields. Agriculture, hunting and the raising of herds and cattle were their chief occupation. The religion of the Allemanni was that of the other German tribes. They honored Zeus, the Creator of the world. When they were equipped for battle they were armed with spear, lance, battle-axe, short and long sword and a shield of braided work or wood. They proceeded against the enemy in wedge formation and with great bravery. A Roman writer has compared their war-cry to the sound of waves beating against rocky cliffs.

The Rhine river formed a boundary line between the Romans and the Germans. But as the Romans extended their domains east of the Rhine they built in the first and second centuries A.D. a wall which began at Coblenz on the Middle Rhine and extended to Regensburg on the Danube. Regensburg had been originally a Celtic settlement. It was on the right bank of the Danube river at the influx of the Regen river, and about 82 miles n.e. of Munich, which at that time did not yet exist, it having not been founded until in the 10th century. It was also about 75 miles n.e. of Augsburg, which was founded in 15 B.C. by the Emperor Augustus. The Celtic name for Regensburg had been Radespona or Ratisbon. The Romans called it Castra Regina or Fortress Regina. It soon became an important trading center. The distance from Coblenz to Regensburg must have been at least about 250 miles. Along this protecting wall the Romans built a chain of camps or forts, in which they stationed about 100,000 Roman soldiers, who came with their wives and families and took up their permanent residence. Many other Roman people also came into the new development. There were many officials and there were merchants who traded far to the north-west and to the south-east. The Romans intermarried with the Germans who were living beyond the boundary line. There was peace between the two peoples until well into the 3rd century.

About the year 250 A.D. there began a general movement of all the German tribes from the east toward Gaul and Italy. It is believed they were under pressure from encroaching Slavic tribes. The Eastgoths, the Burgundians, Allemanni, Suevi and others were headed for the Roman Empire. They penetrated the land of the Helvetians. In the year 259 they broke the protecting wall of the Romans. The Romans were compelled to withdraw from the eastern bank of the Rhine, but they erected a second line of fortifications. One of the older Roman settlements, where the Rhine makes a sharp turn to the north, came into outstanding importance. The Roman Emperor Valentinian I, who stopped there in the year 374 gave it the name Baseleia or Basel.

Though tremendous efforts were made to stem the mighty oncoming of the Germans, by the middle of the 4th century they had penetrated very far into the territory of the Helvetians. Toward the end of the 4th century the Roman legions were called away from the Rhine to protect Rome from the Eastgoths, who with their fleet were pressing on the eastern coast of Italy. Then a gayly mixed crowd of German folk followed from the Danube into Gaul. They poured into the south and the west and in the year 406 or 407 they spread into Alsace and over the Jura mountains, and more than all else into the country between the Rhine and the Alps.

In the year 443 the Burgundians who had been living in the lands between the Vistula and Oder rivers migrated into the country about Lyons and Geneva. At that time Lyons was an important center. It had been the refuge of some Greeks who lived there as early as 59 B.C. The Roman General Agrippa had made it the starting-point of four great roads and Augustus had built an aqueduct, some temples and a theater. The Burgundians founded a state which became independent before the downfall of the Western Roman Empire. They entered into friendly relations with the Roman people and shared with them their homes and gardens, their meadows and crops. The German settled alongside of the Roman and lived peaceably with him. They married the Roman women. A Roman-Burgundian empire grew up from the Middle Rhone territory to western Switzerland. It spread itself into what are today the cantons of Geneva, Wadt, Vallis, Neunberg and Freiburg, as far as the region of the Arench, and toward the end of the 5th century to the Aar river. Gradually the Burgundian emigrants abandoned their Arian forms of worship and took up the Roman beliefs.

The Roman-Catholic Church became more exactly organized in the Burgundian-Swiss region than in the middle or eastern parts of Switzerland. The episcopacy was raised to a high degree. Bishoprics were established in Geneva and Lausanne. In Geneva in the beginning of the 6th century the foundation of the Cathedral was laid. The famous Abbey of Agaunum or St. Maurice had begun to have an influence well beyond the Swiss borders and was already known in far distant lands.

Thus the rule of the Romans came to an end in the Helvetian countries. Two German stems had settled and brought in a new, strange life. Switzerland of today is formed of the Roman-Burgundian west, the German middleland and the southern Alp valleys, who have shared the changing fate of Italy.

PART I

THE HASLE VALLEY

The names Hasle, Hasli and Hasla have existed since earliest times for various places in the different cantons of Switzerland. Today there are several towns by those names. One of the oldest sections by that name is the well-known "Hasli-Thal" or Valley of Hasle. It begins near Brienz in the canton of Bern, follows the Aar river to its source in the Aar glacier of the Grimsel mountain and extends from the borders of the canton of Uri to those of the district of Interlaken. In the year 1252 it was called "Hasile", in 1275 the "Vallis de Hasile" and later "Hasli of Wyssland".

In the earliest centuries individuals were known only by their Christian or first name, it being given at baptism. It is said the custom of giving a name at baptism was possibly imitated from the Jewish custom of giving a personal name at circumcision. For many centuries individuals were distinguished by Christian names only. But as the population increased and intercourse became more general it became necessary to use some other name by which one man might be known from another. In the course of time the use of a surname became universal. It is quite probable that the early people of the Hasle Valley, when travelling in strange parts, added "of Hasle" to their Christian name, and that in time their name "of Hasle" became Hasler and later Hassler. It is not impossible that the people of the Hasle Valley regarded themselves as a group or clan, and that when the use of a surname became general the name "of Hasle" was generally adopted. There were probably many in the valley who preferred to take other names, according to their occupation, station or locality. The name "of Hasle" was used until well into the 14th century. Today the names Hasler and Hassler are common in different parts of Switzerland. During the Reformation many Hasler families migrated into Germany, the Austrian Tyrol, Holland and some went into England.

The following description of the Hasle Valley was translated from the "Historical and Biographical Lexicon of Switzerland", volume 4, found in the Landesbibliothek at Bern:

"A few relics found buried in the soil, such as a stone axe, a stone lamp and bronze points of lances would indicate that the Hasle Valley was inhabited before historic times. Roman coins of the third century proved an early Roman settlement. But traditions and legends indicate also a settlement of Swedes and East Frieslanders. That the Germans came later is shown by the many German names of places, and the general use of German words as "Alp", "Wald" etc. A "History of the Interlaken Cloister" written in 1296 affirms that the Hasle Valley was independent and had for its banner a black eagle on a golden field, and for its seal an eagle with outspread wings. The Haslers were their own rulers. Proofs of their independence were the small tax, the election of "Landsammern" or bailiffs by the people and their right to make war, treaties and alliances."

"In the year 1311 Hasle lost its independence when King Henry VII of Luxemburg demanded taxes from the Haslers, to be paid to the lords of Weissenburg. Then began feuds between the Haslers and the Weissenburgers. In the year 1334 the Hasle Valley became a possession of the City of Bern and a part of the Canton of Bern. During the fourteenth century there was much quarreling with the people of Wallis (Vallis) as to taxes and boundary lines. In the time of the Reformation its good relations with Bern suffered, as the majority of Haslers opposed the new regulations of Bern and wished to keep to their own beliefs. From that time on the Haslers were no longer considered "friends and equals", but were treated as subjects. This relation continued until the year 1798."

"Chronicles and songs of the sixteenth century relate that the Haslers and the Frutingers often visited together and that they had festive games, such as shooting, stone-throwing, running, jumping and singing."

"The landscape of Hasle is very wild and rough. It is surrounded by high snow peaks, on whose slopes are great glaciers. But there are many fruitful mountains and more than one hundred and fifty meadows. Usually there is the "noon wind", which often melts two feet of snow within twenty-four hours, and moderates the cold air from the glaciers. Owing to the frequent flooding of the river Aar, the soil in many places was covered over with moss."

An old history by Hans Jacob Leu published in 1754 in "A General Swiss Lexicon", volume 9, found in the Landesbibliothek in Bern says:

"The land of Hasli is bounded at noon by the land of Wallis, at sunrise by that of Uri, toward midnight by the Unterwalden and toward evening by the district of Interlaken. It is eleven hours in length to walk and nowhere is more than a half hour wide. Its main village is Meiringen, also called "An der Gassen". Here was the only church up to 1713, which the city of Bern built. In 1722 churches were built in Gadnerthal and Gutthauen. The same pastor had charge of the three churches. To the second he must walk three hours and to the third two hours. There are many beech and pine woods and everywhere much food for the cattle, and grain and vegetables. In the mountains are wild game and fowls. There are many mines, especially of lead and iron, and in the soil are clear crystal, alabaster, marble and slate. On the third Tuesday of May and the Wednesday following the twentieth of September a yearly market is held."

The history of Jacob Leu goes on to relate several legends of the early settlements of the Hasle Valley:

"The inhabitants of this region, who were called in Latin "Haselii" also "Avellani" had a peculiar dialect. Originally in a book written by one of Swedish and East Friesland origin there relates of three leaders, Suizero, Remo and Hadisleo or Hasius, who came with their wives and children, took the name of "Hasleri" from the name of their leader Hasius, pushed up the Rhein and came into this land. Because it was similar in appearance to the land they had left in Sweden they stayed and built homes in it. Suizero and Remus kept to the mountain region called the Francmont and the Lepont, but Hasius retained the mountain called "Brunig" and gave the land the name of "Hasle". This was about 114 years before Christ according to some and according to others 380 years after Christ."

"Again it is said that the place called "Hasle" was settled in the 7th century after the building of the city of Rome and that it was settled by some of the Cimbri, a tribe of Teutonic origin, who had been driven out of their homes along the North Sea and had been wandering into the territory farther south. They came over the Brunig mountain with a leader called "Resti". They settled along the Aar river and built homes. They named the land "Hasle" from the name of their home in East Friesland, which was called "Hasseling". They made their own laws and had no other ruler. There actually was a fortress called Resti."

"The earliest written law in the valley of Hasle was that drawn up in 1534. It contained sixty-two articles of criminal, political and civil law. The highest executive was the "Landsamman" or bailiff. Under him was a councilor "Rath" of fifteen men, called the "Ehrbarkeit". Their meetings were held in the "Rathhaus" or "Landhaus" in Meiringen, which was built in 1658.

"Among the earliest Landsammanner or Councillors of Hasle recorded is the name of Werner von Resti, "Ritter und Edelknecht" for the year 1334. Others following were Hans Jacob in the year 1339; Christian Nageli in 1471; Ludwig Michael in 1496; Ludwig Michael II in 1510; Hans Jacob in 1537; Joseph von Bergen in 1582 and others."

NOTE: The settlement of the valley of Hasle by people from East Friesland is not at all impossible as we read in history that the Romans explored the territory of Friesland during the 1st century A.D. and made it a Roman province. The Frieslanders or Frisians were hostile to the new rulers. Many revolted and fled up the Rhine river and took refuge in the mountain country of Switzerland. There was also at this early time considerable intercourse between the people of the north and the southern country. Rome had established many trading-posts along the Rhine river. Many articles from the north such as furs, amber from the Baltic shores, smoked meat, cattle etc. were in demand in Rome and they were traded from merchant to merchant until they reached their destination.

Friesland or Vriesland or Frisia was a province along the northern coast of Holland and included the Frisian Islands. The people were of Teutonic origin. The Romans found them living between the Scheld and the Ems rivers. They are described in the old Anglo-Saxon poetry as a courageous sea-loving people who took part in many an expedition against pirates and had numerous feuds with their neighbors the Swedes and the Danes. It is thought they helped in the early expeditions to England and that some of them settled in England. Their territory became a part of the Roman Empire during the time of the Roman General Drusus and remained under Roman rule until in the 7th century when it was taken over by the Franks. See Encyclopedia Britannica, "Frisians."

In the article on "Switzerland" in the Encyclopedia Britannica the writer was greatly pleased to find mentioned a list of old historical chronicles, which were written some in Latin, some in German to describe the happenings of that early time. Among these were some songs of victories in war, some ancient fables, one chronicle of the annals of the famous old monastery of St. Gall, a song of the story of William Tell, from which the legend arose, and most delightful of all, a "fanciful poem of the supposed Scandinavian descent of the men of Schwyz and Ober Hasle", the people of the Canton of Schwyz and of Upper Hasle. This last was written by Eulogius Kiburger of Bern, who died in the year 1506.

Madison Grant in his "Passing of the Great Race" says:

"While the Swiss of today are neither tall nor long-headed, their country was thoroughly conquered early in the Christian era by the Nordic Allemanni who entered the Rhine valley. The exodus of soldiers from Switzerland throughout the Middle Ages to fight as mercenaries in France and Italy gradually drained off the Nordic element until the chief evidence of its former existence lies today in the large amount of blondness among the Swiss. With the loss of this type the nation ceased to be a military community."

Of the early people living along the North Sea he says: "The most important communities in Continental Europe of pure German type are to be found in old Saxony, then the country around Hanover, and this element prevails generally in the north-western part of the German Empire among the Low German-speaking population, while the High German-speaking population is largely composed of Teutonized Alpines. The coast of the North Sea extending from Schleswig and Holstein into Holland is inhabited by a pure Nordic type known as the Frisians. They were the handsomest and in many respects the finest of the continental Nordics and are closely related to the English, as many of the Post-Roman invaders of England either came from Frisia or from adjoining districts."

HASLER FAMILIES IN EARLY CENTURIES

Translated from "Historisches and Bibliographisches Lexikon der Schweiz" found in the Landesbibliothek in the city of Bern.

In Rapperswil on Lake Zurich was an estate called Hasle. Its inhabitants called Hasler were an independent family. Among the earliest records was Rudolf Hasler, councilor from the year 1289 to 1310; Peter Hasler mentioned in year 1310, Johann Hasler in 1346, Rudiger Hasler in 1376.

The names Hasler and Hassler are found in the cantons of Aargau, Bern, Freiburg, Graubunden, St. Gallen, Unterwalden, Vallis, Zug and Zurich. In a few of these cantons the people are of the Roman faith, but in most of them the Reformed faith dominates.

In the Canton of Aargau formerly belonging to the territory governed by the Hapsburgs were Martin Hassler or Marti of Wyl, prominent in 1588, Munriz Hassler in 1695, Gabriel Hassler a bell-maker in 1673, Hans Friedrich Hassler, who died in 1871, whose sons Hans 1840-1903 and Gottlieb in Basel 1805-1864 were lithographers. Ferdinand and Rudolf Hassler 1770-1843 went to America and became U. S. Coast Surveyor.

In the Canton of Freiburg are Hassler families living in St. Antoni and St. Ursen. Among them was Pierre Hasler of the city of Freiburg, prominent in 1351.

In the Canton of Graubunden are many of the name Hasler, in the villages of Ilanz, Trons, Maladers and others.

In the Canton of St. Gall are many of the name Hasler living in the Rhine valley. In the village of Margreten was Waelti Hasler in 1419; in the city of Altstätten in 1522 was Vincenz Hasler and in 1533 Hans Hasler. Wolf Hasler was bailiff of Altstätten and Joseph of Margreten in 1777.

In the Canton of Unterwalden were many old Hasler families, many of whom have died out. In 1257 Uhlrich Hassler bought from the Count of Hapsburg a free property in the neighborhood of Alpnach, Königswyl and Sarnen. Hans Hassler died at Bellenz in 1422 and Melchio at Paria in 1525.

In the Canton of Wallis Hassler families date back to the 15th century in Lotschen and to the 18th century in Agaren. Their crest was a golden crescent moon between two gold stars on a blue lined field. Martin Hassler held offices in Morel in 1705 and in Lotschen and was rector in Kippel in 1706.

In the Canton of Zug Heinrich Hassler was prominent in Aegeri in 1379. A Heinrich Hassler died in St. Jacob in 1444. A Heinrich Hassler, Landvogt of Baden in 1499 died in the Milan War in 1516. Hans Heinrich Hassler was bailiff of Betenbuhl in 1828. From these families were many preachers and bailiffs.

In the Canton of Zurich Hassler families settled in the community of Mannedorf as early as 1433 and in Dinhard in 1467. In the city of Zurich have been those of the name Hasler and Haseler since 1343.

In the canton of Bern in the district of Interlaken are many of the name Haesler, one of whom Johann, born in Schonthal, studied in Heidelberg and Leipzig theology and philosophy and later medicine. He was a physician in the city of Bern in 1582, was professor of arts in 1583, was suspected of anti-catholic views and was driven out. In 1593 he fled to Litauen in Russia, where he lived in obscurity.

In the canton of Bern are many old Hasler families, who from 1324 have lived and still live in Aarwangen, Bern, Burgdorf, Frutigen, Spiez and Walkringen. Close to Walkringen is the village of Hasle. The domain of the church at Hasle extends through the villages of Bienbach, Aeschbach, Stalden, Goldbach, Kalchhofen, Uetigen, Gomerkinden and Schafhausen. Its church was first built in 1254, was enlarged in 1678 and rebuilt in 1713. Its baptismal and marriage records extend back to 1556. In the towns of Leimiswil and Madiswil in the vicinity of Rohrbach are today many Hasler families. In the town of Madiswill out of a population of two thousand people there were more than forty Hassler families in the year 1934.

HASLER FAMILIES IN THE CANTON OF BERN FROM THE 12TH TO THE 14TH CENTURY

From "Fontes rerum Bernesium", an old history of Bern in nine volumes, edition 1876-1909:

June 2, 1152, The Duke Berchtold IV of Zahringen renews the agreements concerning the monastery of St. Peter in the Schwarzwald. Among the witnesses are Eglolf of Hasle. (This is the oldest form of writing the name Hasler, indicating that Eglolf had formerly belonged to a community called Hasle.)

In 1212 "Burkhard of Hasle gave to the church of St. Urban eighty marks in silver and in articles of furniture; his mother gave fifteen and a half marks and many alter cloths and mass garments to the church." This was a cloister in the canton of Lucerne.

June 14, 1244. Konrad of Hasle, a priest, and Peter of Hasle, a bailiff in the Hasle Valley are mentioned.

On May 12, 1305 in the city of Bern "Heinrich called Haseler", citizen of Bern and Gertrude his wife give up all claim to their property at Buchholz, in the neighborhood of the city of Thun, in favor of Konrad von Schorren, citizen of Thun. At the close of the deed is the seal of Heinrich Hasler, on which are the words, "Sigillum Henrici Haslarii" (seal of Heinrich Hasler).

July 25, 1307 at Thun: Peter von Wichtrach makes a donation to the Cloister of Interlaken at his home on the Hartel mountain. Among the witnesses was Konrad Hasler.

This same Konrad Hasler is again mentioned in a transaction dated Feb. 24, 1324, when Walter von Ried, a citizen of Thun, bequeaths his property to his wife, "the house which is situated between the houses of Philip von Kien, Ritter, and Rudolf Hafner, and which belonged to the deceased Konrad Hasler."

In October 1310 a property belonging to the Cloister of St. John in Freiburg was sold. Among the tenants on the property was Rudolf Hasler. He paid a yearly rent of 14 shillings of Bern money. The property was an estate called Neuenegg, and was situated on the road from Bern to Freiburg, about four hours from Bern, and on the Sense river. In a deed dated April 1312 in Freiburg is the following:

"I, Konrad, called Hasler, son of the deceased Rudolf, called Hasler, citizen of Freiburg, sell to Ritter (knight) Jordan two peasant houses in Niedergurzellen and two others in Uetendorf for 63 pounds and 10 shillings of silver". (Gurzellen and Uetendorf are villages north-west of the city of Thun.

(In 1300 in the village of Uetendorf near Thun was an estate which belonged to Wilhelm and Uhlrich Hasler.)

August 10, 1317 at Steffinsburg, Cuno von Uetendorf, a citizen of Thun gives his uncle a piece of property. Among the witnesses was Johannes of Hasle. Steffinsburg is north-west of Thun.

In 1320 Haslers are listed among the contributors to the church in the village of Erlembach in the valley of the Simme river:

P. de Hasele—6 pfennige also P. de Hasele—3 Schilling.

H. de Hasele—18 pfennige.

H. de Hasele—3 Schilling.

June 8, 1329 Peter Hasler sells a garden in Optingen on the Aar river near Bern.

On August 23, 1342, a landlord Heinrich von Ruggisburg sells estates in Hasle by Thurnen to a cloister in Bern, consisting of four pieces of property cultivated by Johannes and Rudolf, sons of Nicklaus of Hasle. Today there are still standing houses on the mountainside at Thurnen, called "Haslii".

On Feb. 3, 1343 Otto of Niederbutschel, Peter Hasler and Peter Butschler discuss the civic authority of the bailiff of Ruggisberg. There was a cloister on the Ruggisberg, which owned estates, one of which was rented to Heinrich and one to Peter Hasler, brother of Heinrich.

February 16, 1352 Werner of Hasle was ordained priest in the monastery of Bern, order of St. Dominic.

January 13, 1374. Peter Hasler of Manfred buys 21 acres called the "Schurgut" at Buschenried from Rolf of Bettelried, for 205 pounds of old coins. Bettelried and Manfred are in the upper Simme valley.

May 27, 1378. Heinrich of Unterbach sells to Uhlrich Schiltmann estates in Boningen, among which was a meadow that lay between the properties of Uhlrich Hasler and Konrad Mosis. Boningen lies near Interlaken.

May 20, 1409. Greta Schilt of Brienz, wife of Christian Hasler, sells a meadow at Unterseen, which is near Interlaken. At Unterseen were Haslers on into the seventeenth century. According to the contributions to the church in 1651 Jacob Hasler paid twelve and a half "Batzen" for buying tankards for the communion service.

In 1507 Johannes Hasler was head of the Franciscan monastery of Bern.

From 1583 to 1590 Johannes Hasler was professor in the Academy of Bern.

Jan. 31, 1545 Benedikt Hasler was locked up by the Council of Bern and had to pay 20 Gulden, because he had given false testimony.

THE CANTON OF BASEL.

In the canton of Basel, formerly a part of the canton of Bern, was the Farnsburg, an old castle. It is near the town of Sissach. To its domain formerly belonged many villages. The inhabitants of these villages had to pay a yearly tax to the Lord of Farnsburg. In the list of taxpayers to Count Sigismund II, from the years 1372 to 1376 are the names:

"The old Hasler" in Normadingen which today is Ormalingen possesses one farm, pays two measures of wheat, 1 measure of oats. To the owners of Hasenhalden he pays 1 measure of oats and 1 chicken.

Hans Hasler, the younger, possesses one farm in Normadingen pays 1 measure of wheat, one measure of oats, 2 chickens and 1 young ram.

In the year 1461 are the following:

Hans Hasler pays yearly 4 measures of wheat, 2 measures of oats, 6 chickens and 60 eggs.

Uhlrich Hasler, miller at Normadingen pays yearly 7 measures of wheat, 1 hog and 30 shillings in money.

In Rickenbach near Gelterkinden was a farm leased to Hans Hasler and to Hans Mueller, both from Gelterkinden. The lease was drawn up at Easter 1460 on the conditions that the lessees pay in the year 1460 four measures of grain, in 1461 five measures, and in 1462 and 1463 seven measures. In addition they must pay yearly ten chickens and one hundred eggs. When this period of time shall have passed the farm must be inspected and newly appraised. If the value is higher the tax must be increased.

From "Basler Zeitschrift fur Geschichte und Alterthumskunde," volume 8, pages 48 to 66.

ALSACE.

In Alsace in the town of Altkirch was a Conrad Hasuler living in the year 1297. In Landeser, a community near Muhlhausen a Petermann Hasler was bailiff in 1411. In Kleinbasel was a Lienhart Hasler, who in 1462 was eighty years old. Kleinbasel was at that time a separate city near Basel, on the eastern bank of the Rhine.

BAPTISMAL RECORDS IN SWITZERLAND

The Rathaus or City Council Hall in the City of Bern has many baptismal records in its archives. Other places in the Canton of Bern where the records were searched were Walkringen, Hasle near Burgdorf, Schlosswyl which includes Oberhünigen and Wyl, Madiswyl, Rohrbach, Lemiswyl which includes Ruthelm and Oberdiesbach.

In the Canton of Basel records were searched in Buus-Maispach, Gelterkinden, Rothenfluh, Wintersingen, Arisdorf and Sissach.

The records of Aarau in the Canton of Aargau had been searched in previous years by Mrs. Anita Newcomb McGee.

The records of Königsschauffhausen were searched, which is near Freiburg in Baden, Germany. It was found that the original Hasler in the district was a Jacob who came from Botzberg in the Canton of Bern.

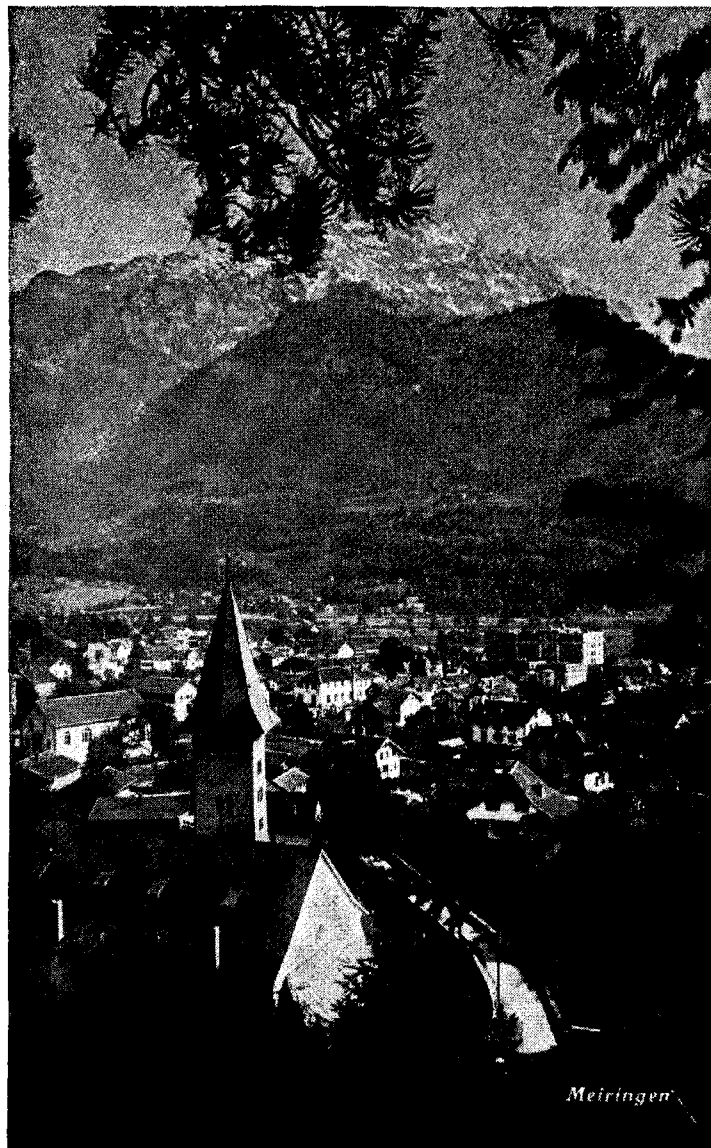

An effort was made to search the records of Strasbourg in Alsace also those of Wesingen and Durlach which are near Karlsruhe in Germany, but with less success. Strasbourg was a battle field in many wars. Many records were destroyed.

Walkringen is a very beautiful village east of the city of Bern and not far from the town of Worb. One can go by train from Bern to Worb and then walk the remaining distance to Walkringen. The road takes one through very beautiful country, full of wooded slopes and mountain streams, the grassy meadows of the "Berner Oberland". The Rappisburg is not far and also the town of Hasle. Walkringen was settled in the 12th century. Many Haslers lived there in the early days, and there are many Hasler baptisms. In almost every family was a Michael and a Christian Hassler just as in Pennsylvania there is a Michael and a Christian in the early families of York and Lancaster counties. There are many fine inns in Walkringen. One called "Ruttihubelbad" is a favorite with the people of Bern.

The following pages give the baptismal records in the various civic offices of the above-mentioned communities. They are translated from the German script. The writer was accompanied on these trips by the genealogist Dr. Robt. Oehler of Bern.

OBERDIESSBACH IN THE CANTON OF BERN

Oberdiessbach is a village half way between the city of Thun and Walkringen, now on the Thun-Burgdorf railroad. To the domain of its church belong several other villages, among which are Bleiken and Aeschlen. Near the village is a castle where formerly the patrician family "von Diessbach" lived. A short distance from the village is a small hamlet called "Hasle" and nearby "Haslifeld". In the years from 1588 to 1670 a Hassler family lived here. There were also Haslers living in Aeschlen and Bleiken, and they brought their children to the church at Oberdiessbach for baptism. Among the most prominent of these families was a Christian Hasler who in 1605 was "Statthalter" or chief magistrate of Diessbach. His coat-of-arms still exists on a silver goblet used by the members of the court. It is similar to that of Heinrich Hasler of the city of Bern, mentioned in 1305.

Another of these families was that of Peter Hasler, who on January 22, 1630 married Anna Kuesser of Aeschlen. Their children were:

Verena Hassler, born Dec. 5, 1630
Benedicht Hassler, born Feb. 3, 1633

PART II

MIGRATIONS TO AMERICA.

Alongside of the development of the Roman Church was also that of old evangelical congregations, which had existed since time immemorable. In the eleventh century the latter began to have strong and able supporters. Many deposed Roman bishops who were opposed to the doctrines of the Roman Church joined their ranks. In 1159 Peter Waldo, a rich merchant of Lyons, France began preaching in his community. He was opposed to priests and monks and to infant baptism. The archbishop of Lyons tried in vain to put a stop to his gatherings. His followers increased in numbers and spread into many provinces. They were persecuted by the Church of Rome. In 1161 about thirty German men and women sailed over to England to escape papal tortures. They were Waldensians and were led by a German of some learning. They were scourged and banished and many froze to death.

Everywhere the number of Waldensians began to increase. By 1159 a thousand cities were filled with them. They were in England, Germany, Hungary and northern Italy. In 1203 they had the Holy Scriptures translated into their own language. By 1250 there was scarcely a land where the Waldensian sect had not found its way, and everywhere they were known by their plain dress, moral life, temperate living and their refusal to take part in war and politics. In 1498 in Upper Italy Savanarola was burned to death for his faith in the mild doctrine. The fifteenth century closed on scenes of bloodshed and martyrdom.

In the sixteenth century the teachings of Menno Simon in Holland strengthened the Waldensian movement. Then came the bitter attacks of Martin Luther and Zwingli against the Roman Church. The world seethed with controversy and conflicting theories. In 1523 the Waldensian movement had reached the Canton of Zurich and spread rapidly into the Rhine valley of Switzerland, into Germany and the Tyrol. In 1526 it reached Bern and developed particularly in the valley of the Emm river, in the eastern mountain sections and in the Aargau. The authorities of Bern and Basel held a convention to devise some plan to get rid of "these unchristian and damned heretics". Many fled into the high mountains of the Austrian Tyrol. In 1671 was the first important migration of Waldensians or Baptists, as they were called by the Church of Rome, from Switzerland to the Palatinate. Many of the Reformed faith who were friendly accompanied them. Often in one family some members were Reformed and some Baptist. They stopped in Alsace on their way to the Palatinate. In Strasbourg was a large settlement of them, in Mannheim another. Letters carried back and forth between the settlements and Switzerland were a constant means of encouraging those who were more reluctant to leave their homes.

From "Annals of Pioneer Swiss and Palatine Menonites and other early Germans of Eastern Pennsylvania" by H. Frank Eschelman, and "Geschichte der bernischen Taufer" by Ernst Mueller.

In 1674 William Penn wrote letters to the magistrates of Emdon in Hanover, Germany, offering the fugitives a new way of life. He later visited this section. The people were greatly impressed with him and some of them were among the first to follow him to the New World. In 1683 thirteen Baptist families came to America and settled on the banks of the Delaware. They made caves and built huts to live in. They were so poor their settlement was called "Armentown", the German word "arm" meaning "poor". Later the name became "Germantown". In 1712 the government of Alsace issued an edict to banish all Baptists from Alsace. Then began a more general movement toward America.

Mannheim in Germany had a large parish where many Swiss fugitives had gathered. According to the archives of Amsterdam in a list of Baptists living at Wesingen, not far from the old city of Durlach, for the year 1731 was the name Michael Hasler. (See "Geschichte der bernische Taufer" by Ernest Mueller.) The district of Durlach belonged to the parish of Mannheim.

In a volume of documents at Karlsruhe, called "Pfalz-Generalia 4239", in a list of persons living at Friesenheim, which is on the west bank of the Rhine, slightly north and west of Mannheim, in the year 1759 was the name Jacob Hasler.

In the records of the city of Crailsheim, in the northern part of Wurtemmburg, is listed for the year 1608 a preacher Hassler, as having come there from Hunberg in Hessen. This may be the same person who is listed between 1596 and 1621 as Johann Hasius from "Homberg von der Hohe". He was also for a time a Lutheran schoolmaster at Heldenbergen near Friedberg in Hessen.

In the year 1732 forty-two families were brought over by the "Trustees for settling the Colony of Georgia" under the direction of James Edward Oglethorpe of England. He had obtained a grant of land from King George II, for whom the colony was named and also a gift from Parliament of $50,000. In this company were many from the neighborhood of Salzburg, Austria. (See "Saltzburgers and their Descendants", written by P. A. Strobel, published in Baltimore in 1855; also "Historical Collections of the Joseph Habersham Chapter S. A. R. vol. I, 1902".) There Saltzburgers were originally Swiss people of the Waldensian faith who had fled for safety during the persecutions of the Waldensians, Menonists and Anabaptists from Switzerland into the secluded valleys of the Austrian Tirol. They lived there a few decades only to be driven out again when the Church of Rome determined to stop the progress of the Reformation. During the reign of the prince-archbishop Leopold Anton Count Firmian there was a forced migration of protestants from the mountainous districts of Pongau and Pinzgau in the neighborhood of Salzburg. Many of the refugees wandered into Eastern Prussia, where they were received by Emperor William, and many settled in other Protestant countries such as Wurtemberg, Hanover and Holland. In 1732 about 130 Saltzburgers joined with the company of Oglethorpe and came to Georgia. They founded a settlement about twenty-five miles from what is now Savannah, which they called "Ebenezer". It was a "thrifty settlement of happy, peaceable, German-speaking people, and it flourished for more than a century." Now no trace of it remains.

In a book called "The Ebenezer Record Book", translated from the German by A. C. Voigt, three Haslers, spelled "Hasslauer" are listed as having belonged to the Ebenezer settlement. These were Sebastian, Jacob and Elizabeth. The name did not continue on in Georgia. At least there are none of the name in the lists of Revolutionary soldiers from Georgia nor in any other available records. Whether the Ebenezer Haslers died out or whether they migrated north is a matter of conjecture.

In a letter from Dr. Herbert Klein from the State Archive of Salzburg he writes:

"In a list of 147 individuals who emigrated from St. Johann in Pongau on the 24th of November, 1731 is named a Christian Hassler from the farm "Neiderbach". With the same group were also a Thomas Hassler and a Wolf Hassler. Subsequently others of the name Hassler, mostly from St. Johann were emigrating."

"The Colonial elements, the Holland Dutch and the Palatine Germans who came in small numbers to New York and Pennsylvania, were also largely Nordic, while many of the French Huguenots who escaped to America were drawn from the same racial element in France. The Scotch-Irish, who were numerous on the frontier of the middle Colonies were of pure Scotch and English blood, although they had resided in Ireland for two or three generations. They were quite free from admixture with the early Irish." (from the "Passing of the Great Race", by Madison Grant.)

From 1740 to 1765 was a period of warfare in Europe. England was engaged in a war with Spain, which ended in 1748. Her war with France begun in 1744 ended as that with Spain in the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle. A second war with France which began in 1755 was a struggle of the two nations, England and France, for colonial supremacy in America. It closed in 1763 with the overthrow of France. The question of English or French rule in this continent hung in the balance until the triumph of Wolf at Quebec in 1759.

In the ten years from 1737 to 1746 the movement to America had greatly increased. William Penn had been sending more messengers to the Palatinate, to invite the people to come to Pennsylvania, and to advertise the resources of that great territory. Up to 1745 as many as 20,000 Germans and Swiss had arrived at Philadelphia. In 1745 no ships came, and in 1746 but two ships arrived. The emigrants left their homes in the spring of the year, made the journey down the Rhein with great difficulty, often on foot, and were ready to sail across the ocean in the month of May or June. The ocean voyage was then completed in the months of summer or early fall.

The English settlers of the colonies gradually became alarmed at the constantly increasing numbers of German and Swiss arrivals. Much doubt was expressed as to what might happen if the country was overrun by the "foreigners". The result of the many discussions of the matter was that a law was passed in 1727, whereby the German was to take an oath of allegiance to the colonial government on his arrival in Philadelphia. Accordingly when the ships unloaded their passengers at the wharf the men over 16 years of age were marched in a body to the City Hall, where they signed their names and swore allegiance to the new government. It is from the lists of these names and the dates of the arrivals of the ships, that we gather much information as to the coming to this country of our German and Swiss ancestors. Unfortunately some of the lists were lost, as they were written on loose sheets of paper. The names of the women and children under sixteen were not taken, and those men who were sick were not compelled to sign. Consequently the lists are not complete, and many arrived who were not listed.

In a revised list of ship-sailings, published in a book of three volumes, called "Pennsylvania German Pioneers", translated from the original lists by Prof. Hinke, we find the following Haslers:

On Ship "St. Andrew", James Abercrombie, Master, carrying 400 Palatines, arriving from Rotterdam at Philadelphia, September 9, 1749, Christian Hasseler.

On Ship "Ann", John Spurrier, Master, carrying freight from Basil, Wirtemberg, Zweybrecht and Darmstadt, arriving from Rotterdam at Philadelphia September 28, 1749, Michel Hassler.

On Ship "Crown", Michael James, Master, carrying "Switzers", arriving from Rotterdam at Philadelphia, August 30, 1749, Jacob Hassler, Hans Jacob Hasler, Sebastian Hassler.

On Ship "St. Andrew", Captain Robert Brown, arriving from Rotterdam at Philadelphia August 18, 1750, Jacob Haassler, Abraham Hasseler, Hans Scheurer.

On Ship "President", Captain Dunlop, arriving from Rotterdam at Philadelphia Sept. 27, 1752, Henry Hossler.

On Ship "Chance", Charles Smith, Master, "carrying 200 Freights in the whole Number of Souls", arriving from Rotterdam at Philadelphia Sept. 23, 1766, John Hasler.

NOTE: When the emigrant did not know how to write, as was often the case, the name was written by an English clerk, the emigrant signing with a cross. The English clerks often distorted the spelling of the German names.

PHILADELPHIA

In the year 1750 the population of the city of Philadelphia was about 7000 people. William Penn had laid out his "Faire Greene Country Towne" with regular streets crossing at right angles. The state-house, begun in 1729 was finished in 1734. The State-house Inn, a two-story tavern, was built in 1693 on the north side of Chestnut Street. It was known as Clark's Inn. The court-house had been built in 1707 at Second and Market Streets. The London Coffee-shop was built in 1702.

Gabriel Thomas, a Swede, who visited Philadelphia in 1697, says: "The houses are stately, and of brick, generally three stories high, after the mode in London, and as many several families in each. The city hath three fairs every year, and two markets every week. They kill about twenty fat bullocks every week, in the hottest time in summer, beside many sheep, calves and hogs. Poor people get near three times more wages for their labor than in England or Wales. City lots, which in the compass of twelve years might have been bought for fifteen or eighteen shillings, are now sold for four-score pounds in ready silver. That which might have been bought for three pounds within the space of two years, are sold for a hundred pounds apiece. Weavers have ten or twelve pence the yard for weaving. Of lawyers and doctors I shall say nothing, because this country is very peaceable and healthy."

As early as 1749 Benjamin Franklin had started many movements, which made life easier. He created the first circulating library in America, which imported a large circulation of books from London in 1732. He started the "Pennsylvania Gazette", now the "Saturday Evening Post." He established the first hospital for the relief of the sick. In 1749 he raised funds for one of the first great educational institutions in America, now the University of Pennsylvania. He invented the lightning rod and the movable Franklin stove, or "Pennsylvania fire-place." He organized fire protection, street-paving, lighting and cleaning.

Early in the eighteenth century the Market Street wharf was a busy landing-place. There boats from Burlington to Philadelphia connected with stage-coaches to New Jersey and to Staten Island. It was the main landing-place for produce raised in New Jersey, and ships left there for New York, Carolina and all points south, including the West Indies.

The German colonists who settled at Germantowne brought the textile arts of manufacture with them. Most of the people from Crefeld were weavers. The poem of Richard Frame in 1692 describes:

At the Court house at Philadelphia. Thursday Nov^r 10th 1759

"The German Towne, of which I spoke before,
Which is at least in length a Mile or more,
Where live High German people and Low Dutch,
Whose trade in weaving linnen cloth is much;
There grows the Flax, as also you may know,
That from the same they do divide the tow."

In a letter of August 6th, 1685, addressed to Penn in England, Robert Turner speaks of this industry: "The manufacture of Linnen by the Germans goes on finely, and they make a fine Linnen". In his description of Pennsylvania in 1696, Gabriel Thomas says: "All sorts of very good paper are made in the German Towne; as also very fine linen, such as no person of quality need be ashamed to wear. The spinning and weaving were household work, each craftsman having his appliances in his own cabin. They also made druggets, crapes, camblets and serges, besides woollen cloths.

Numerous traditionary accounts of Philadelphia attest the fact that there was always among the early settlers a frank and generous hospitality. Their entertainments were devoid of glare and show. Mr. Kalm in 1748 "expressed his surprise at the universal freedom with which travellers were everywhere accustomed to leap over the hedges and take the fruit from the orchards, even while the owners were looking on, without refusal. Fine peaches were taken from the orchards of the poorest peasants, such as could only be enjoyed by the nobility in his own country." William Fishbourne in his manuscript narrative of his time says: "For many years there subsisted a good concord and benevolent disposition among the people of all denominations, each delighting to be reciprocally helpful and kind in acts of friendship for one another." The old people all testify that the younger ones were much more reserved and held under more restraint than in later years. John Warder, speaking of this period, says: "Most people lived in the same spot where they pursued their business. Wives and daughters very often served in the stores of their parents, and retail business was mostly in the hands of widows and maiden ladies. Dinners and suppers went the round at Christmas, and they who partook of the former were expected to remain for the latter. Afternoon visits were made, not at night as now, but at an early hour, so as to permit matrons to go home and see their children put to bed. Decent citizens had a universal acquaintance with each other." Benjamin Franklin says "The tradesmen before the Revolution were an entirely different generation from the present."

PART III

NOTE: The following chapters take up the genealogical record of the family founded by MICHAEL HASSLER of York County, Pennsylvania. In successive chapters the writer has attempted to arrange what material could be obtained of the families founded by other Haslers, who migrated to Pennsylvania from Switzerland at the same early period. These are the CHRISTIAN HASSLER family of Rapho Tp. Lancaster Co. Pa., the families of JACOB HASSLER and his brother SEBASTIAN of Berks Co., Pa., and the ABRAHAM HASSLER family of Franklin Co., Pa.

Nearly all family names, as they come down through the centuries are subject to wide variations in spelling. Changes occurred when families migrated to foreign countries, and their name had to be adapted to the new language. Many of the English clerks of the pioneer days in Pennsylvania seemed to delight in fantastic spellings of the German names. In the old land entries we sometimes find "Horstler", "Haasseler" etc. In Switzerland and Germany the oldest spelling of names was in Latin, and writing was confined to the scholars. When people began more generally to write there did not seem to be any necessity for spelling a name in any one particular way. A consonant could be doubled or not according to the whim of the writer. We find "Hasler" and "Hassler", "Kiefer" and "Kieffer". In the pioneer days in this country names were often spelled as they were pronounced and accordingly there were the spellings "Hosler", "Hossler" and "Hostler", which spellings have been retained in many families.

MICHAEL HASSLER

OF CODORUS TP., YORK COUNTY, PA.

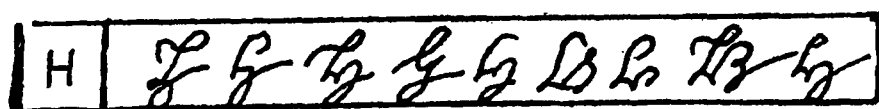

The arrival in this country of Michael Hassler, who died in 1774 in North Codorus Tp. York Co. Pa. is confused with that of Michael Hessler. In the sailing lists a Michael Hasler arrived from Rotterdam on the ship "Two Brothers", September 15th, 1748. In the original lists in Harrisburg the second letter of the name is blurred so that it might be either Hasler or Hesler. There is also a Michael Hessler who arrived on the Ship "Neptune", October 4th, 1752. The writer is of the opinion that these two were father and son, as the second Michael Hessler is listed as sixteen years old. There are records that Michael Hessler bought land in Richmond Tp. Berks County on June 3rd, 1752 and in Newbury Tp. York County in 1762. It is likely that he then settled in Northumberland County, as there are three of the name Hessler, William, John and Michael, who when the Revolution broke out, enlisted in the 1st Company from Northumberland County on September 2, 1776. This Company became a part of the Pennsylvania

Line. In 1778 William Hessler returned to Northumberland County to defend his family in the Indian raids, then being conducted by General John Butler of the British forces. They were in the terrible "Massacre of Wyoming", an account of which is given by his great grandson, Jacob E. Hessler of Elkins, West Virginia. After the close of the Revolution William Hessler was rewarded for his brave services by a gift of a large tract of land in Northumberland County, given him by Congress. The census of 1790 lists Michael and William Hessler in Northumberland County.

Hessler families lived in Northampton County, Pa. and are listed there in later censuses. An Abraham Hasler served in the Revolution in the years 1781 and 1782, listed in Captain Jacob Ballead's Company from Bethlehem Tp., Northampton County. No further trace of Abraham Hasler could be found in that county.

The sailing lists in "Penn. German Pioneers" by Strassburger and Hinke give the name Peter Hesler as arriving at Philadelphia on November 5, 1764 on the Ship "Prince of Wales", and that of Hans Heinrich Hesler on Dec. 4, 1771 on the Ship "Betsy".

Michael Hassler, who died in Codorus Tp. York County, Pa. in 1774, sailed from Rotterdam on the Ship "Ann", arriving at Philadelphia Sept. 28th, 1749, according to the translation of the original sailing lists made by Prof. W. D. Hinke and published in his "Pennsylvania German Pioneers". There was some difficulty in finding Michael's name in the sailing lists. In the lists given in Penn. Archives also in those of Rupp the name on the Ship "Ann" arriving Sept. 28, 1749 was translated as "Michael Gassler". But Prof. Hinke gives on page 891 of volume 2, of his "Penn. German Pioneers" a list of German capitol letters. The student of German script would be interested to see how many varieties there were of the German letters as they were written at that time. Below is a copy of the many ways of writing the capitol "H" as is shown in his book.

The sailing list of the Ship "Ann" of Sept. 28, 1749 and also Michael Hassler's will, as it has been preserved in the Court-house at York, Pa. have both been photographed, that the reader may see how our Michael signed his name. It will be noticed that the capitol "H" is almost the same in both signatures and that it looks much like a capitol "G".

On page 416 of volume I of Strassburger and Hinke's "Pennsylvania German Pioneers" we find:

"List 139 C at the Court-house at Philadelphia, Thursday, the 28th Sept 1749.

Present: Edward Shippen, Esquire.

The foreigners whose Names are underwritten, imported in the Ship Ann, John Spurrier, Master, from Rotterdam & last from Cowes in England, did this day take the usual Qualifications to the Government. By the list 105. Whole Freights 242. From Basil, Wirtemberg, Zweybrecht, Darmstad."

In this list of 242 persons we find the name "Michel Hassler" and it is to be noted that he wrote his name and did not sign with a cross.

There is a tradition in the family of his oldest son that Michael Hassler came from the Canton of Bern in Switzerland. The writer visited the Court-house or "Rathhaus" in the city of Bern in the summer of 1934 and found one record which may have been of the father of our Michael. It read as follows:

"Elsbeth Hassler, daughter of Michael Hassler of Walkringen and Magdalena Kormen of Bumplitz, born in Bern (City of Bern) April 24, 1718."

The records of Walkringen were then searched and many Hassler baptisms were found dating back to the time when according to the law of the Reformed Church baptismal records were first kept. In almost every Hassler family of the community of Walkringen there was a Michael and a Christian Hassler. This would lead one to suppose that our Michael may have come from one of the families of Walkringen.

It is probable that Michael's father left Walkringen at an earlier date and that our Michael was not born in Walkringen. There is a tradition that the family lived in Alsace near the city of Strasbourg, and that our Michael was born there. It is probable that he married his wife Margreta before sailing to America. The baptismal record of his third son found in Philadelphia states that Michael was Reformed and Margreta was Lutheran. As there were comparatively very few Lutherans in Switzerland, it is more likely that Margreta was from Alsace or some part of Germany and not from Switzerland. The people of Alsace were of German origin, having a dialect of their own and were not generally of any French mixture. The spellings Michel and Mihel were used in France, but do not necessarily indicate that Michael came from Alsace. They can also be an abbreviated way of spelling Michael.

The passenger list of the Ship "Ann" states that the company on the ship was made up of persons who came from the district between Basel and Darmstadt, which would include Alsace.

It is probable that Michael and Margreta Hassler remained in or near Philadelphia for some years after their arrival in that city. There is a family tradition that they lived where Wanamaker's store is now situated, but no actual record can be found to that effect. There are also records that the son Joseph was born in Philadelphia County, and that the son George was born in Merion Tp. of Philadelphia County. This is true, as there is a record of Michael's having paid taxes in the year 1754 in Tredyffrin Township. This record is to be found in a manuscript copy of early Chester County Tax Assessments, in the Gilbert Cope Collection, which is in the library of the Historical Society of Philadelphia. Tredyffrin Township is now a part of Chester County, and it adjoins Upper and Lower Merion townships, which were formerly a part of Philadelphia County, but now belong to Montgomery County. It is probable that Michael Hassler lived in Upper Merion Township and paid his tax to the nearest collector, who was in Tredyffrin Township. It was not a great distance to Norristown and to Germantown. Two of Michael's children were baptised by preachers of Philadelphia churches. The baptismal record of the third son, Christian, is to be found among the records of St. Michael's and Zion's Lutheran Church. The record reads:

"Christian, son of Michael Hassler, Reformed and Margreta, Lutheran, born August 28, 1752, baptised April 23, 1753, Sponsors: Jacob Landgraf and Maria Landgräfin."

The baptism of the youngest son Abraham is to be found among the records of the 1st Reformed Church of Philadelphia. That record reads:

"Baptised October 4th, 1761, Abraham, son of Michael Hassler and wife Margreta. Godparents: Abraham Wild and his wife Anna Barbara."

It is interesting to note that the name Jacob Landgraf, who was a sponsor at the baptism of the son Christian also appears in the list of passengers on the Ship "Ann", and that the son Abraham was likely named for Abraham Wild and not for Abraham Hassler, who was living not very far away in Lancaster County. The records of other churches of Philadelphia, Germantown and Norristown and in Merion Township have been searched, but no other baptisms were found.

After the birth of the youngest son Abraham, Michael Hassler moved his family to York County, Pa. He bought a farm there in North Codorus Township. It contained 216 and a half acres. No deed for its purchase can be found. It is described however in a deed dated August 30, 1781, when the oldest son Joseph sells four acres of it to his brother George. It adjoined "the lands of Sebastian Harleman, Andrew Shettley and Michael Hassler jr., and the Great Road leading from Yorke Town to Baltimore, being a part of a larger tract of land containing 216 and a half acres, whereof Michael Hassler, (father of said Joseph and George) was seized owner." The road from York to Baltimore was in those days what is now Route III, one hundred and eleven, and is still the main road from York to Baltimore.

Michael Hassler died in March 1774. His burial stone has not been found. He may have been buried in the graveyard of the Ist Reformed Church of York. That church property has since been moved and the gravestones placed in Prospect Hill Cemetery. Unfortunately many of the stones were of a soft sandstone and have crumbled, so that the markings on them are no longer legible.

Michael wrote his will on February 5th, 1774. It was probated the following March and is now to be found in the oldest book of wills in the York court-house. In his will he remembers his wife Margreta and his six children: Joseph, Michael, Christian, Magdalen, George and Abraham. Michael was a weaver. He wills one weaver's loom to his son Michael jr. and one to his son George. According to his will his farm was not to be divided among his children until after his youngest son Abraham became eighteen years of age. Then the oldest son Joseph was to receive 150 acres, and the second son Michael 60 acres. The family continued living on the homestead property and bought adjoining property. They lived there for almost twenty years after their father's death. The sons were listed in the Revolution from York County. Their marriages and the baptisms of their children are to be found among the records of the Ist Reformed Church of York and of St. Paul's and Wolf's Church of Codorus Township.

In the year 1783 a list of taxables was published for Codorus Township, and in it we find the names Joseph Hosler, Michael Hosler and Christian Hosler. These were the three oldest sons. In the year 1786 the son Michael bought 182 acres in Hopewell Tp. York Co. near the Maryland line. In 1789 George took up 222 acres of government land, a part of the eastern boundary of which adjoined Joseph's land. A sketch of this land can be seen in the Land Office at Harrisburg, in Survey Book, C 88, page 28. 122 acres of it lay in what was then called the Manor of Springetsbury. In 1783 Codorus Township contained 199 dwelling-houses, 189 barns, 9 mills and 6 negro slaves. (See Gibson's History of York County, page 951.)

Joseph Hosler sold his property in the years 1792 and 1793 and moved to Peter's Tp. Franklin County, Pa. He died there in 1798 and is buried in the graveyard of the Ist. Reformed Church of Chambersburg. The second son Michael jr. bought land in 1786 in Hopewell Tp. York County, sold it in 1801 and moved later to Roane County, Tennessee. He died there in 1826. The third son Christian sold 200 acres of land in Codorus Tp. in 1805 and moved to Monaghan Tp. York County. He died there in 1813. The fourth son George sold his property in Codorus Tp. in 1790 and bought in Adams County, then a part of York County, in Straban Tp. four miles from the city of Gettysburg. Later a part of the Battle of Gettysburg was fought on his property. He was buried in the graveyard of the Trinity Reformed Church of Gettysburg. The stones of that cemetery have since been moved to the Citizens Evergreen Cemetery. He died in 1837. No record of the daughter Magdalen has been found. It is thought she became the wife of George Lau who lived in Codorus Tp. The youngest son Abraham continued on in Codorus Tp. He died there in 1803.

The children of Michael and Margreta Hassler were:—

1. Joseph Hassler, born September 8, 1750, record taken from his tombstone in Chambersburg, Pa. Married Anna Maria Roemer.
2. Michael Hassler, born 1751, family record. Married (1) Anna Maria —, (2) Agnes Scarborough.
3. Christian Hassler, born Aug. 28, 1752, baptised April 23, 1753, record of St. Michael's and Zion's Lutheran Church, Philadelphia, Pa. Married Magdalena —.
4. Magdalen Hassler.
5. George Hassler, born Nov. 14, 1758, family record. Married Elizabeth Roemer.
6. Abraham Hassler, baptised Oct. 4, 1761, record of 1st Reformed Church of Philadelphia, Pa. Married Christina —.

"Magdalen Hassler and George Lau, both single, were sponsors at the baptism of Maria Magdalen Mitzel, daughter of Michael Mitzel, on September 13, 1773.

*Should read "Michael Hassler, born 1751, married Christina Gieselman."

Magdalen Hassler and George Lau, both single, were sponsors at the baptism of John George, son of Andreas and Elizabeth Lau, Nov. 7, 1773."

We also find that the children of George Lau "and his wife Magdalen" were:

1. John Georg Lau born March 23, 1776, baptised April 10, 1776. Sponsors: Andreas Lau and his wife Elizabeth.
2. Eva Lau, born Sept. 13, 1777; baptised Sept. 29, 1777; Sponsors: George Hassler and Eva Lanius, both single.
3. Johan Peter Lau, born Feb. 21, 1779; baptised March 21, 1779; Sponsors: Joseph Hassler and his wife Anna Maria.
4. Magdalen Lau, born Dec. 12, 1784; Sponsors: Jacob Hassler and Catherine.
5. Catherine Lau, born Oct. 19, 1790; Sponsor: Catherine Gaentzler.
6. Daniel Lau, born Feb. 6, 1795; baptised March 1, 1795; Sponsors: George Lau and Elizabeth Lau.

Other children of George and Magdalen Lau, mentioned in court records were:

7. Jacob Lau.
8. Margaret Lau married George Baker.
9. Polly Lau married David Kleindienst.

George Lau was the son of Peter and Susanna Lau, and was born Feb. 17, 1751. Other children of Peter and Susanna Lau were Andreas Lau, born Nov. 3, 1751 and Anna Eva Lau, born May 27, 1760, baptised April 29, 1760 "at the Lau school-house."

We find at the baptisms of the children of Andreas and Elizabeth Lau:

1. Joseph Lau born Oct. 3, 1780, baptised Oct. 22, 1780, Joseph Hassler and his wife Anna Maria were sponsors.
2. Christian Lau born Aug. 19, 1782, baptised Sept. 1, 1782. Christian Hassler and wife were sponsors.

From the above records it is evident that the Hassler and Lau families were closely associated, and as far as records are concerned Magdalen Hassler may have married George Lau.

YORK AND THE REVOLUTION

York was of importance strategically during the Revolution. On Aug. 27, 1777 General Howe of the British forces sailed up the Chesapeake Bay and landed at Elkton, Maryland. The militia of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and Delaware were called out. Washington with 11,000 men met Howe at Chad's Ford on the Brandywine, twenty-six miles from Philadelphia. A desperate battle took place. Congress decided to move the public records from Philadelphia to the interior of Pennsylvania, and selected the town of York as the temporary Capitol of the U. S. Fifty troopers and fifty infantry carried the official papers first to Trenton, then to Easton and then to Bethlehem. The liberty bell was brought from the Independence Hall in Philadelphia to Bethlehem, and was concealed for several months in a Reformed Church. The entire procession wended its way across the Susquehanna river to York. They crossed the river on flat boats at Wright's Ferry and proceeded to York on horse-back, all except John Hancock, who travelled in a chaise, and Joseph Jones, a member from Virginia, who came in the private carriage of General Washington. Congress assembled in York on September 30th, 1777 in the provincial court-house, which stood in the center square.

At that time there were 286 houses in York and about 1800 inhabitants. There were a dozen of more public inns or taverns, where the members of Congress found lodgings. The court-house, which was now the Capitol of the U. S. had been built twenty-two years before. It was fifty-five feet long and forty-five feet wide. There were six windows facing the street and four windows at each end. Each window contained two sashes and eighteen small panes of glass. A bell, which had been ordered for one of the churches, was placed in the cupola and was rung loud and long for liberty and independence. Crowds of people assembled in the court-house square and the Declaration of Independence was read with great applause.

In October 1777 Congress made arrangements for the removal to York of the "Hall and Sellers" printing press, and the "Pennsylvania Gazette" was printed in York until June 18, 1778, "for the purpose of conveying to the public the intelligence that Congress might from time to time receive".

On June 18, 1778 the British army was forced to evacuate Philadelphia. The news reached York on the 20th and was read to Congress. Bon-fires were built on the public common, the court-house was brilliantly lighted, military companies paraded with drum and fife, the streets were filled with people and the evacuation of Philadelphia was the sole topic of conversation. The court-house bell and the bells of the churches rang on the following Sunday. The chaplain of Congress preached a sermon in the Reformed Church. Nine days later Congress adjourned to meet in Independence Hall in Philadelphia on July 2nd.

From "Gibson's History of York County, Pa."

From Gibson's History of York County, pages 128-132:

As early as December 1774 a company was formed in the town of York, the object of which was to make soldiers, who would be well disciplined for battle, in case the disaffection then existing toward England should proceed to hostilities. A second company was formed, which was called the "Independent Light Infantry Company belonging to the 1st Battalion of York County".

At the beginning of the Revolution other companies were formed. The fourth and fifth companies were started in the spring of 1776. The first and second companies had long since been dissolved, but the soldiers joined again and became a part of the fifth and sixth companies. The 3rd, 4th, 5th and 6th companies constituted a part of those five battalions which marched to New Jersey in 1776 to form the Flying Camp. Though they marched out of the county, the only object was to form other companies.

In 1776 the counties of York and Cumberland were required each to raise four companies for forming a regiment. These companies, which were enlisted for fifteen months, left the county to enter the war in the latter part of March. In the year 1777 these companies formed the 11th Regiment of the Pennsylvania Line.

Early in May 1776 a rifle company, which had been listed for fifteen months, marched from York County to Philadelphia, where it was attached to Colonel Miles' Rifle Regiment.

In July 1776 five battalions of militia marched from York County to New Jersey. From these five battalions, about six weeks after their arrival, there were formed two battalions of the Flying Camp. Those who did not enter the Camp returned home. The Flying Camp consisted of 10,000 men. Pennsylvania furnished 6000 men, Maryland 3400, and Delaware 600. York County furnished 400 men.

On August 12th, 1776 the State Convention resolved to add four additional battalions to the Flying Camp. York County was required to furnish 515 men toward making the number 2,984, the total number of the four new battalions. The lists of these battalions are very imperfect. No exact documents exist. The information, which does exist, was gathered after the Revolution from the testimony of a few old men.

In May 1777 the county of York was divided into districts, and militia were formed from each district. On April 24th, 1777 it was determined to form a camp near Chester from the counties of Chester, Lancaster and York. York County was to furnish 500 men, with as many arms and accoutrements as could be procured in the county. A blanket was to be procured for each man, to remain the property of the state. On August 22nd, 1777 Congress resolved that the State of Pennsylvania keep up 4000 militia, to assist in repelling the threatened attack of the British by way of the Chesapeake and Delaware Bays, that these militia be encamped at Lancaster, Downingtown and Chester, and that they be subject to the orders of General Washington. On August 27, 1777 the Executive Council wrote to the Lieutenants of the several counties, that General Howe, having landed an army in Maryland, less than seventy miles from Philadelphia, it would be necessary to draw out more militia of the state. On September 6th Congress gave orders that all militia in the state be in readiness to march at a moment's warning. On September 12th the third class was called.

"The great number of Quakers, Menonists and Dunkards in this county occasions the companies to be so hard to be filled up. The others in the upper end of the county, which is mostly Irish and Dutch, go pretty generally".

The sons of Michael Hassler served in the American Revolution and are recorded as follows:

The road from York County to St. Thomas in Franklin County led through Shippensburg to Fort Loudon. It was for a long time called the Three Mountain Road and is now the Lincoln Highway. In 1794 the U. S. troops passed over it to quell the Whiskey Rebellion, and General Washington travelled it from Bedford to Philadelphia. The original paths of the buffalo through the forests had been used by the Indians, until they had become well-marked trails. Now the Indian trails were being widened into wagon roads.

It is interesting to note here that at this time there were but few roads in England. Road-making was introduced in Britain by the Romans, but after their departure good roads gradually disappeared. For a period of a thousand years no roads were made in England, because there was no need of them. As late as 1735 George III and Queen Catherine spent a whole night going from Kew to London, a distance of ten miles. We read of a foreign prince, who, on his way to London from Portsmouth was fourteen hours at a stretch unable to leave his carriage or get anything to eat, because he stuck in the mud. In 1750 the Duke of Somerset, on his way to London, sent his servant on before him to give notice, that persons having knowledge of holes and sloughs along the road, should meet him with lanterns and poles to help him on his way. Washington Irving in "Diedrich Knickerbocker", writing of the early beginnings of New York, says: "The sage council of the city, not being able to determine any plans for building, the cows in a laudable fit of enterprise, took it upon themselves, as they went to and fro from pasture, to establish paths through the bushes, on either side of which the people built their houses, which is a cause for the rambling and picturesque turns and labyrinths, which distinguish certain streets of New York today."

The first wagon-road to cross the Alleghenies was made in 1789. Up to this time merchandise was carried by pack-horses. A wooden pack-saddle was fixed upon the back of the horse, over which were placed bent bars of iron, on the curved ends of which sacks of salt and iron bars and utensils were strapped. A horse could carry about two hundred pounds. In 1790 there were but six wagons on the road from Brownsville to Hagerstown, but the number began to increase. The Conestoga wagon, with its red gearing, its blue and white bed and white canvas cover made its appearance, and soon became the established mode of travel.

The part of Cumberland Valley, which is called in the Indian tongue "Kittochtinney", meaning "endless mountain", was settled as early as 1730 by Charles Campbell and John Dixon. The picturesque Kittochtinney or North Mountain of the Blue Ridge forms the boundary of St. Thomas township on the north. Many clear springs of water have their origin and flow into Back Creek and the East Conococheague. The variety of forest and wild fruit trees, the slate and limestone soil, the abundance of purest water made an attractive place for a settlement. The land was first called Penn's Forest, having been purchased from the Indians by William and Thomas Penn. Following Charles Campbell and John Dixon came other Scotch-Irish settlers and in 1754 many sturdy German emigrants crossed the South Mountain from Lancaster, York and other south-eastern counties. In 1790 a draft of a town plot was made and it was named St. Thomas.

St. Thomas, on the main road from Chambersburg to Fort Loudon, now the Lincoln Highway, lay at the beginning of the unexplored west. It was called the "Gate-way of the West". It was the beginning of a prosperous time for this section. During those years cattle and live stock of all kinds passed over the highway from all points west for the markets of Philadelphia and Baltimore. The feeding of the stock, the boarding of the drivers and other business incidental to the stock traffic helped to make trade for the taverns and stores and made a steady market for all produce. Occasionally a drove of cattle made the journey from Texas, and often a deer, elk or buffalo was driven along with them. The droves did not always keep to the main thoroughfare, but branched off from it on account of pasturage. Corn and hay were hauled from distant farms and fed to the cattle. Every tavern had two or three fields, known as "drove lots", which accommodated the daily travel. The feeding of the cattle on the drove lots left much refuse, and was an attractive place for many wild pigeons, which were very abundant. These spots were favorite ones for the sportsman, who usually went home with plenty of birds. Drove of cattle in the height of the season passed continuously from early in the morning until five o'clock in the evening. Before the day of the railroad the number of cattle that passed in a season was about 175,000, with a value of seven million dollars, and during a period of thirty-three years a value of two hundred million dollars.

With the increase of traffic came a greater demand for wagons. The pedlars of merchandise had large fancy wagons, drawn by two good horses. Mail coaches were introduced, which were drawn by two or four horses. Then came large coaches for six, eight or ten passengers, on great leather springs, the driver sitting on top, while behind was a "boot," in which the trunks of the passengers were carried. A "butter-monkey" was drawn by a single horse. Pedlars of merchandise furnished the town and country merchants with a supply to last until they went to Baltimore to lay in a six months' stock.

JOSEPH HASSLER, oldest son of Michael and Margreta Hassler of Codorus Tp. York Co., Pa. was born in Philadelphia Co. Pa. September 8th, 1750, according to the record of his grandson Rev. Jacob Hassler of Fort Loudon, Pa. The date also corresponds to that on his tombstone in Chambersburg, Pa.

At his father's death in 1774 Joseph inherited 150 acres of the farm in Codorus Tp. York Co. Pa. He continued living there until the summer of 1793. In Chalkley's History of Augusta Co. Va. vol. 1, page 195 mention is made of a tract of land owned by Joseph Hassler of York Co. Pa. situated on South River in Beverly Manor, a little south of Staunton. Some dispute arose about the boundary line when the land was sold before 1790.

Joseph Hassler was a member of the York Co. Militia during the years of the Revolution. In the year 1780 he is listed as Sergeant in the Company of George Gieselman of the 7th Battalion. In 1782 he is again in Capt. George Gieselman's Company and in the arrangements for 1783 he is Lieutenant of a Company of the 5th Battalion, of which Frantz Jacob Roemer, his wife's brother was Colonel. See page 54.

Joseph was a wagon-builder. In a deed dated May 12, 1792, in which he sells a tract of land to Andrew Heindorf, he is mentioned as Joseph "Hassler, waggon-maker".

On May 30, 1775 Joseph married Anna Maria Roemer. The record is to be found among those of the Ist Reformed Church of York, Pa. She was the daughter of Friedrich and Anna Dorothea Miller Roemer of Manchester Tp. York Co. Friedrich Roemer came from the Roemer family of Meisenheim in the Palatinate, Germany. Friedrich's great grandfather Jacob Roemer had moved from Meisenheim to Stadecken, Germany and was Mayor of Stadecken from the years 1650 to 1668. Friedrich was born in Stadecken in 1715 and emigrated to this country in 1741. Joseph Hassler and his wife Anna Maria lived for eighteen years on the farm in Codorus Tp. Their nine children were baptised in the Reformed churches of York and of the township.

In the year 1793 Joseph moved his family to Peters Tp. Franklin Co., Pa. About the same time his brother George moved to Gettysburg, which at that time was in York County, but later was incorporated in Adams County. George married Elizabeth Roemer June 25, 1781. Elizabeth was a half-sister of Anna Maria, the daughter of Friedrich Roemer and his second wife Catherine Lanius. On Aug. 1, 1793 Joseph bought a piece of land from Melchor Brindle containing 318 acres and 24 perches. On April 17, 1797 he bought an additional tract of 6 acres, 55 perches from William McDowell. (See Deed Book 4, page 136). This farm lay a few miles south of the town of St. Thomas in Peters Tp. The road to the south from the square in the center of the town led directly to it. Today the large Brindle cemetery adjoins it.

Joseph and his family were an active group in the life of St. Thomas and the vicinity. Anna Maria's brothers Frederick and Frantz Jacob Roemer were among the larger land-owners of the county and were leading citizens of Chambersburg.

Joseph Hassler died March 31, 1798. In accordance with a wish expressed in his will he was buried in the churchyard of the Reformed Church of Chambersburg. It is today called the Zion Reformed Church. The brother George was executor of the will and Frederick Roemer was a witness. On April 22, 1800 Henry Imhoff bought 247 acres, 124 perches of Joseph's farm.

In the census of 1800 we find "Mary Hostler" listed in Peters Tp. In 1810 she is not listed. She married a James Hamilton. Unfortunately we have not been able to find where she is buried. It is thought that James Hamilton was of the large family of Hamiltons of Washington County, Pa., of whom the son William lived at Gettysburg not far from George Hassler.

On Joseph's tombstone in the Reformed Churchyard in Chambersburg is the following inscription:

In later years he inherited a part of his father's holdings in Mill Creek Tp. also on Lake Erie. In the fall of 1800 he married Elizabeth Hassler of St. Thomas. The following spring they drove a team of horses to their new "wilderness home". Their son Joseph was the first white boy born in Springfield Tp. Matthias was a soldier in the war of 1812. He held many township offices and was a founder of the Presbyterian Church of East Springfield.

In later years Elizabeth, wishing to visit her family in St. Thomas, rode the entire distance, 300 miles, on horseback, carrying in her arms a young baby, one of her thirteen children. Samuel Holliday, also a native of Franklin Co. accompanied her on this journey.

JACOB HASSLER OF MERCERSBURG, PENNSYLVANIA
son of Joseph Hassler of St. Thomas, Pa.

About eight miles away from St. Thomas are two knobs of the Blue Mountain range, which are called Mount Parnell and Mount Jordain. A gap between these mountain peaks forms a broad opening in the solid wall of mountain. Through this gap an Indian trail led to the country and mountains beyond. The frontiersman on his journey through the gap found it convenient to stop at a creek, which the Indians had named the Conococheague. The earliest settler in this vicinity, of whom there is a record, was James Black. Tradition says that he purchased a tract of land from the Indians in exchange for a gun and a string of beads, and that he built a mill. This was in the early 17 thirties. To this mill the settlers for miles around brought their grist to be ground. Gradually a settlement grew and was known as Black's Town. In 1759 a part of Black's mill and store was purchased by William Smith, and the settlement was then called Smith's Town. In 1755 William Smith was appointed one of the commissioners to build the military road, which General Braddock had demanded from the provincial government. The bridal path through the settlement was then widened into a wagon-road. Later when wagons came into more general use, freight was unloaded here and was transferred to pack-horses for crossing the mountains for the west. It was not an uncommon thing to see fifty or a hundred pack-horses in a row, laden with salt, iron and other commodities for the Monongahela country.

In 1753 war broke out between the English and the French. The French were skillful in securing the Indians as allies. A reign of terror followed for the English settlers. Everywhere men took up arms and companies were organized. Among the more prominent leaders and a captain in one of the companies was Hugh Mercer. The colonial government established a chain of forts, which served as rallying points for protection and defense. The church at Smith's Town, which the first settlers had organized in 1738 was chosen as a place for protection. Built of logs it was surrounded by a stockade of logs set in a ditch four or five feet deep. It was known as Steele's Meeting-house and Steele's Fort, named for the pastor Rev. John Steele.

On March 17, 1786 William Smith laid out new plans for the town. He changed the name from Smith's Town to Mercersburg, in honor of the gallant Hugh Mercer, who had distinguished himself in the French-Indian war. In 1803 the Mercersburg post-office was established. In 1831 the town of Mercersburg was incorporated. At that time its population was seven hundred people.

(From "Old Mercersburg", by the Woman's Club of Mercersburg).

When Joseph Hassler moved with his family from York County to St. Thomas in the summer of 1793 his twin boys Jacob and Daniel were six years old. They grew up with their brothers and sisters amid the busy scenes of farm, wagon-shop and village life. It was a time when the original log cabins were being replaced by houses of stone and brick. Melchor Brindle lived in a stone house which stood for generations two and a half miles south-west of St. Thomas. But the large majority of houses were still of logs. When Jacob Hassler married and moved to Mercersburg the houses there were all log buildings. Now changes began to take place in the size, style and material of building. There was a demand for the skilled carpenter, the wood-carver and builder. Furniture too, which up to that time had been imported from Europe or roughly cut from logs hewn down to make clearings, was now being studied with care as to detail of design, line and pattern. Jacob Hassler and his brother Daniel became carpenters and cabinet-makers.

Jacob Hassler married April 11, 1815 Elizabeth Kieffer whose family was living close by in Hamilton Township. Both her father and her mother were descendants of Abraham Kieffer Jr., who emigrated to Pennsylvania from the home of the Kieffer families in the Duchy of Zweibrucken, which was a part of the Palatinate in Germany. Many Kieffer families had been living for many years in various parts of the Duchy of Zweibrucken. A Friedrich Kiefer was mayor of the city of Zweibrucken in the year 1694, a Johannes Kiefer was pastor in Walhalben from 1614 to 1620, a Jodokus Kiefer was Latin teacher in Landau from 1592 to 1622, and in the town of Einod on the main street was until recent times a house built in the 15th century, the home of a Kiefer family. The grandfather of our Abraham Jr., Theobald by name, is said to have been sojourning in Paris during the 1690s. He was there in 1697 when the famous Edict of Nantes was issued by the French government, by which all Protestants were to leave France. Theobald and his companions lost no time in getting started on their long journey on foot back to Zweibrucken.

Elizabeth Kieffer's father was Peter Kieffer, a son of Nickolas Kieffer, and grandson of Abraham Jr. Her mother was Hannah Kieffer, daughter of Dewalt Kieffer and granddaughter of Abraham Jr.

When Jacob Hassler and Elizabeth were married they went to live in Mercersburg, and Jacob started there in business as a carpenter. He bought two lots from his cousin Frederick Roemer Jr., which were located at 54 Main Street. One lot was in the rear of the other. Here Jacob built his first home and carpenter-shop. It was in this house that eight of his children were born. On April 1, 1832 he bought lots 145, 146 and 147 from Sarah Smith Brownson, daughter of William Smith, at the corner of LaFayette and Oregon Streets. Oregon Street had been originally an Indian trail and led from Berkeley Springs, W. Va. to Philadelphia. At this corner Jacob built a large brick house in the prevailing colonial style and also a carpenter shop.

In 1834 it was proposed to move the Theological Seminary and High School connected with it at Lancaster, Pa. to another location. At this time there were about 1,000 inhabitants in Mercersburg. They resolved to raise the sum of $10,000 and also offered their old stone academy for the immediate use of the Seminary. A group of four men gave $500.00 each. Among these were our Jacob Hassler and also William McKinstry, who donated four acres of land on the hill overlooking the town as his share. Here in 1836 the first building of the Seminary was built. Later other buildings were added. Dr. Theodore Hoffeditz and Dr. Schenk were sent to Germany to select teachers for the Seminary. They brought back Professors Nevin and Schaff, who became noted throughout the country in theology and philosophy. In 1845 the King of Prussia, Friedrich Wilhelm gave 1500 German Thalers to the school. (See "Old Mercersburg".)

After the coming of the Seminary many new houses of brick were built in Mercersburg, and it is said in over half of them the carpenter work was done by Jacob Hassler. Many of these buildings are still standing. Among them are the Methodist Church, the Lane residence, the homes of McKinstry, Chambers, Grubb, Carson, Johnson, Murphy and others. Jacob Hassler employed as many as twenty apprentices and mechanics, and his contracts extended as far as the Potomac river. A number of young men of Mercersburg learned their trade from him, and they spoke of him as a skilled mechanic and a man of fine character. Among these might be mentioned Jacob Krebs, John Weidlich, Fred Weidlich, Michael Cromer, Jacob Kieffer, Sam Kieffer and Jacob Rhodes. The years from 1815 on were prosperous ones for Mercersburg. In the first year of the Seminary its enrollment was seventy-eight students. In 1840 there were over two hundred students.

Jacob Hassler was a man of strong, vigorous constitution, but exposure to all kinds of weather, long rides on horseback in search of lumber and other building material brought on a pulmonary affection which resulted in an early death. He died July 29, 1848. After Jacob's death his wife and children continued on in the home on Oregon Street. It was a gathering place for the Seminary students, the young people of the neighborhood and the many cousins. Elizabeth died August 10, 1856. Jacob and Elizabeth were buried in the graveyard of the Reformed Church, which property then adjoined that of their house in Oregon Street. The new Reformed Church was built in 1845, is now standing and overlooks the school campus. The bodies of Jacob and Elizabeth were later moved to the new cemetery, called Fairview, which is on the road back of the campus. They rest here in the shadow of the beautiful cathedral spire, whose far-sounding chimes play morning and evening the hymns they loved so well.

The Rev. Jacob Hassler of Fort Loudon said of his parents: "The history of the maternal side of our family is full of good practical lessons in true morality, industry, piety and service to the church. The Kieffer family were robust, stout, long-lived, rosy-cheeked, black-haired, kind and hospitable. Their liberality is exemplified in the legacy of the sum of $10,000.00 given by Daniel Kieffer at his death in 1853 to the Theological Seminary of Mercersburg, and in the gifts of his brother Abraham Kieffer of St. Thomas, who annually supported half a minister of the Gospel. In settling up father's estate we found many subscriptions, which he had given to the church and the pastor's salary. His house was the minister's home. When strange ministers came to hold Communion services they often stayed at our house for weeks at a time. He made his boys donate their services as sexton at the church. He was a good singer, a man of prayer, a strict believer in family worship, in prayer at table and attendance at Sabbath-school. He was an indulgent parent, a kind neighbor, a ruling Elder in the church and highly esteemed in the community. His life and death are fulfilled in the words of David:

"The righteous shall flourish like the palm-tree,
He shall grow like the cedar of Lebanon,
Those that he planted in the house of the Lord shall flourish in the courts of our God."

MARTIN'S PATENT BEE PALACE

The subscriber having purchased the right of the above patent for Franklin County, begs leave to call the attention of the public to this valuable invention. He feels satisfied that an acquaintance with its numerous advantages over all other kinds of hives cannot fail to bring it into general use. It is much larger than the common Bee Boxes and affords space for the usual increase in a hive for a number of years, thereby preventing them from swarming annually. The Worm, which is generally so destructive to Bees is altogether excluded, the honey can at any time be removed without injury or disturbing the bees. It has been in use in various parts of the country for several years, and has received general approbation. A model of the Bee Palace will be exhibited in the different towns in the county as soon as practicable. Persons wishing to examine it can do so at any time by calling at my residence at Mercersburg.

KENTUCKY AND TENNESSEE

The first movement westward from Pennsylvania and Virginia was to Kentucky. The name Kentucky is from the Iroquois word "kentake" meaning prairie or meadow-land.

In the year 1751 a company was organized for the purpose of selecting five hundred acres of land on both sides of the Ohio River for the settling of families. Christopher Gist was the head of this company, and it was known as the Ohio Company. They entered Kentucky at the mouth of the Scioto river, and made their way to the Licking river, which they ascended. They next crossed the head-waters of the Kentucky river. The company located two hundred acres of land on the shores of the Licking river. Efforts towards the development of this land were interrupted by the French and Indian War and later by the Revolution.

In 1769 came Daniel Boone. He wandered from place to place and gave names to many places. In 1772 patents were issued to John Fry for lands in Lawrence and Greenup counties which were said to have been surveyed by Washington.

In 1773 Bullitt and Hancock Taylor organized two companies, which went down the Ohio river from the Kanawpa to the mouth of the Kentucky. On their way they laid out a town in Lewis County and one in Bracken County. The Taylor Company also made a survey where the present town of Frankfort stands and in Mercer County. In 1774 a town was laid out by James Herrod called Herrodsburg. In 1776 Colonel James Smith wandered through the southern part of Kentucky. A year later came John Findlay and Michael Stoner.

In 1775 settlers began to come into the state with greater rapidity. They came down the Ohio river in well loaded canoes and flat boats; they came over the mountains through the Cumberland Gap in companies afoot and on horseback. In April 1775 Daniel Boone began building the town of Boonesborough on the Kentucky river. There were at that time one hundred and fifty immigrants in Kentucky, all men, not a female among them. After September 1775 the women of the immigrant families began to come. By 1785 there were enough inhabitants in Kentucky to apply to Virginia for a separate government. The rapid settlement was assisted by the Transylvania Company, who fortified Boonsborough for protection from the Indians and supplied it with powder, lead, food and clothing. The Transylvania Company was composed of citizens from North Carolina. They obtained a deed from the Cherokee Indians for the greater part of the state of Kentucky. The outlines of this grant began at the mouth of the Kentucky river, following that stream to the source of its northern branch, from there to the crest of the Apalachian mountains, then westward to the source of the Cumberland river, down the Cumberland river to the Ohio, and up the Ohio to the starting point. The amount of land included in this grant was twenty million acres. It cost the Company about ten thousand pounds sterling, which in our money was fifty thousand dollars, one quarter of a cent an acre. The deed was dated March 17, 1775.

By 1790 Kentucky had a population of 73,000 people; in 1800 of 220,000 people. Before December 1781 some Pennsylvanians had located close to the settlement of Boonsborough. Thomas Speed says, "Immigration went westward into Kentucky in advance of any other point. It was an island of population, far from any shore, to be reached only by long and perilous passage." One reason why it was settled before other western parts was the fact that the Indians did not make their homes in Kentucky. It was their hunting ground, but their homes and villages were farther north in Ohio or farther to the south, where the Cherokees and Chicksaws lived. The pioneers encountered great hostilities from various Indian tribes, but they would have suffered more, if Kentucky, like Ohio and New York had been the actual residence of the warlike tribes. Land could be bought in Kentucky on easy terms and the privilege of paying for it in the depreciated colonial and continental paper money was an added inducement to leave the eastern states, where since the Revolution there were high taxes and general dissatisfaction. Boone says that "thousands of people left their peaceable habitations to wander through the wilderness of America in quest of the country of Kentucky. It became a general movement of men, women and children."

The emigrants to Kentucky from Maryland and Pennsylvania went generally by way of the Cumberland Gap, as the trip down the Ohio was more perilous and not possible for return. Cumberland Gap is situated at the point where the three states Kentucky, Virginia and Tennessee meet. It was a mountain gorge 500 feet deep, with steep sides that barely gave room for a road-way. It was discovered by a party of Virginians in 1748 and was named in honor of the Duke of Cumberland. It soon became the main pathway by which the emigrants crossed the mountains to Kentucky and Tennessee. After arriving at the Gap, if the traveller followed a road to the north he was in Kentucky, but if he continued along the same road he was in Tennessee, and could proceed to Rockcastle Hills where he came to the bluffs along the Cumberland river and the settlement of Nashborough, later called Nashville.

The line of travel from Philadelphia led through Lancaster, Yorktowne, and Abottstown to the Potomac river, which was crossed at Wadkins Ferry. From there the travellers continued on to Martinsburg, Winchester and up the Shenandoah river to Staunton, Virginia. Another road led out from Baltimore, passed Old Town, now Cumberland in Maryland, and Cumberland Fort on the Potomac river, and along Braddock's Road to Redstone Old Fort, now Brownsville on the Monongahela river. This lower road subsequently became known as the National Turnpike or Cumberland Road. It became a great connecting link between the east and the west, the "Wilderness Road". Thomas Speed says that travellers with household stuff and implements for farming could wagon their luggage out from Philadelphia or Baltimore or other eastern points to Pittsburgh or Redstone Old Fort in about twenty days. The wagons covered with canvas afforded a place to sleep at night.

Arriving at Staunton, Virginia the travellers followed the great trough between the mountain ranges and passed the high ground called the Divide. They then came to the waters of the New river. Here other roads from the Carolinas and from Richmond, Virginia met. It was an important intersection. Not far away was Fort Chissel, a rude block-house built by Colonel Bird in 1758. At this point the several great streams of immigrants came together and continued what was to be the most perilous part of the journey, the crossing of the mountains beyond which lay their goal, the new uninhabited country of Kentucky.

Kenneth Roberts in his book "Oliver Wiswell" describes the movement of people through the Cumberland Gap during the American Revolution as follows:

"There were times when I feared that none of the thousands who moved so painfully along the Wilderness Trail would ever reach their destination. Beyond Fort Chissel the road ceased to be a road. It was a gash through laurel thickets, over mountains, along valleys, that might have been torn through this untouched wilderness by a knifelike cataract that cut the earth to its bone and marrow. Such was the narrowness of the gash that carts, horses, travelers were backed up at Fort Chissel, as a stream is backed up in a narrow valley during a spring freshet.

We came in sight of Cumberland Mountain a week before we saw the Gap. First it hung straight ahead of us, a long mass tipped with white when the early morning sun shone on it; and we marveled that snow could exist beneath a sun so hot. As we moved closer to that lofty barrier, it took on the look of a gigantic wave, foam-crested, curling above us. What we had taken for snow was white rock, impenetrable and cruel. Mountains boxed us in—on the right that threatening, oppressive, towering, wave-like mass of rock whose white crest seemed perpetually to surge and undulate, as a rushing breaker lurches in the moment of its fall: to the left the long dark mass of the Clinch Mountains.

Spring had come to all the other valleys through which we had labored; but in the Powell Valley there was frost at night, so that we froze and ached from dark to dawn. When the sun rose over the rim of that gigantic dark cup, the rocks gave off a shimmering heat; steam drifted above the foaming waters of the Clinch and from the cold black earth; and in a moment's time the icebox of a valley was an oven.

How all those women and the little girls got safely across the last ferrying place in Powell's River—the one between Martin's Station and Cumberland Gap—is more than I can say. The river was a thundering torrent: its shores a churned soup of slimy clay. The men, black and white, stood on the far bank and hauled women across with ropes, as they'd have pulled in fish. All up and down the river, women lay sprawled in the mud, retching. When they'd coughed up all the water in them, they wrung it from their hair and clothes and went reeling on, green-faced, pale-lipped, smudgy-eyed, draggled-haired.

The Gap appeared in the towering breaker of a mountain as surprisingly as though the barrier were truly a wave. At one moment the wall was solid: the next moment there was a diagonal cleft in it. The Gap was a villainous trace through that chaos of heaped-up rock. For hours we scrambled around boulders the size of farmhouses, through a tortuous maze of other boulders, conscious of nothing but keeping our feet, of staying ahead of those pressing behind us, of climbing on and on, up and up through that narrow rocky gap, amid an unending chorus of rattling hoofs on rock, shouting men, blarting cows and calves. Then the cold damp wind of the dark mountains gave way to a warm breeze smelling of meadows and spring; the men around me had stopped shouting and cursing and I could hear Craig's Congregation singing. I shouldered my horse around a bend and caught my first glimpse of Kentucky—a sunny plain, all blue and gold, dotted with groves of trees. There seemed to be no end to that golden plain. It stretched off and off into a soft haze—a milky infinity."

Having arrived at their destination after the long and tedious journey, the immigrants built their cabins close together for protection and along four sides of a square. The open square served as a playground, a muster field, a corral for domestic animals and a storehouse for implements. The cabins contained the rudest conveniences. A bedstead consisted of forks driven into the dirt floor, through the prongs of which poles were extended to a crack in the wall. Over these buffalo skins were spread, which served as a mattress, and over them bear skins for a covering. The windows were holes in the wall and were covered with paper saturated with bear grease. The doors were openings over which a buffalo skin was hung. Whole families occupied a single room. Here the women hackled the wild nettle, carded the buffalo wool, spun the thread, wove the cloth and made the clothing. The men wore buckskin hunting shirts, trousers and moccasins, and the women linsey gowns in winter and linen ones in summer.

In the evenings and on rainy days the fiddle was heard and the merry Virginia reel was danced by young and old. A marriage that united a boy of sixteen and a girl of fourteen was an occasion of great merriment. When an itinerant preacher came along and gave them a sermon two or three hours long, that was also a great event. The most important mechanics were the blacksmiths, carpenters and wheelwrights. Among them they managed to make guns, furniture and implements of agriculture.

(From "The Wilderness Road" by Thomas Speed, published in "Filson Club Publications".)

Constance Bourke, who has written much on American frontier and folk lore in her book "Audubon", printed in 1936, describes many interesting encounters of Daniel Boone with the Indians.

"Cumberland Gap is a noted place,
Three kinds of water to wash your face.

Cumberland Gap with its cliffs and rocks,
Home of the panther, bear and fox.

The first white man in Cumberland Gap
Was Doctor Walker, an English chap.

Daniel Boone on Pinnacle Rock
He killed the Indians with an old flintlock."

MICHAEL HASSLER, JR.

second son of Michael of Codorus Tp. York Co. Pa.

MICHAEL HASSLER, second son of Michael and Margreta Hassler, born in 1751 in Philadelphia Co. Pa., date furnished by Mrs. Margaret Gregory of El Paso, Texas; died Sept. 4, 1826, date on tombstone; buried at Swan Pond Churchyard, Roane Co. Tennessee, which is near the town of Harriman, Tenn.; married Christina Gieselman who was born in York Co. Pa. in 1758 and died in Tenn. in 1847, is buried at Swan Pond Churchyard.

After his father's death in 1774 Michael went to live for a short time in Hagerstown, Md. While there he was influenced to start on foot to Tennessee. He walked to Knoxville, Tenn. In the year 1777 he walked back to his home in York Co. Pa. In the winter of 1777 when Washington was at Valley Forge he married Christina Gieselman and joined the York County Militia. In the return of the year 1780 he is listed as Clerk in Captain George Gieselman's Company of the 7th Battalion and in 1782 he is Sergeant in the same Company. (See page 54.)

Michael inherited a part of his father's farm in Codorus Tp. York Co. and on May 6, 1786 he bought 182 acres and 103 perches in Hopewell Tp. York Co. On September 5, 1801 he sold this land to Michael Morrison. (See Deed Book 2, page 388, York.) Later he moved his family to Roane Co. Tenn. the exact year is not known. He built a house and mill at Swan Pond near Harriman in Roane Co. One purchase of 133 acres is dated April 20, 1809. His house was only recently torn down and the mill is still standing. The state road passes by the place and is known as the Swan Pond Highway. (This information was furnished by Mrs. Margaret Gregory.)

Baptismal records have been found for the first six children of Michael and Christina. These children were born when the family was living in Codorus Tp. York Co. After they moved to Hopewell Tp. it is thought the family attended Steltz Church.

Steltz Church was built on two acres of ground given by Philip Steltz in the year 1795 and is located in the 6th District of Baltimore County, Maryland, which is the next county adjoining York County. It was bounded on the north by the Mason and Dixon line at a point where Codorus and Shrewsbury townships meet that line. The church building was erected within a few feet of the boundary line in the State of Maryland. (See Prowell's History of York County, vol. 1, page 953.)

Unfortunately the baptismal records of Steltz Church have been lost and no more records of Michael's children could be found. The dates of the last three children have been taken from census records.

The census of 1800 for Hopewell Tp. York Co. lists Michael Hassler as over 45 years old, born before 1755, wife over 45, born before 1755, and living with:

GEORGE HASSLER, second son of Michael Jr. and Christina Gieselman Hassler, born Feb. 2, 1780; baptised March 4, 1780, record of St. Paul's Church, Codorus Tp. York Co. Pa. Sponsors: "George Hassler and Susanna Gieselman."

Although George's father and his five brothers all went to Tennessee after 1801 George himself remained in York County. He is listed as owning property in Hopewell and Shrewsbury Tps. An acreage in Hopewell Tp. bought in the year 1809 was sold in 1812 to Conrad Noon.

It is thought he attended the Steltz Church, which is across the county line in Maryland. As the records of Steltz were not kept we have not been able to find any baptismal records of George's children. The following list has been made from census records.

Census of 1810 lists George Hassler in Hopewell Tp. as 25-45 years old, born 1765-1785, wife same age, living with:

It is not known in just what year Jacob Hassler moved to Ohio. He bought land near the town of Millville in Butler Co. Ohio on March 23, 1844, according to deeds of Butler Co. His son Quincy was born in Millville Oct. 18, 1843. In 1850 Jacob moved his family to Indiana, settling in the village of Lewisburg in Kosciusco County. He died in the fall of that same year.

In 1857 the family moved to Warsaw, Kosciusco County. The son Quincy started in the newspaper business. Later he became one of the owners of the Fort Wayne Gazette, of Fort Wayne, Ind. He was also connected with the publication of the Indiana Republican and the Daily Times of Warsaw. He died Dec. 6, 1893. The census of 1850 of Fairfield Tp. Butler Co. Ohio lists Frederick Hostler born in 1802, his wife Barbara born 1804, and a son George born 1833. It is thought this Frederick may have been a son of George and Mary Noon Hassler and a brother of Jacob of Butler Co. though there is nothing to prove this statement. There were Hasslers living in Butler Co. Ohio at a later date as some of them visited each spring in the home of David Shearer Hassler then living at Mt. GEORGE HASSLER, fourth son of Michael and Margreta Hassler, born Nov. 14, 1758 in Merion Tp. Philadelphia Co. Pa., family record, died May 24, 1837 in Straban Tp. Adams Co. Pa.; married June 25, 1781 Elizabeth Roemer, record of 1st. Ref. Church of York, Pa. Elizabeth was born Oct. 28, 1761, the daughter of Friedrich and Catherine Lanius Roemer of York Co. Pa. and half sister of Anna Maria Roemer, who married Joseph Hassler of St. Thomas.

George and his wife Elizabeth and two children were buried in the graveyard of the Trinity Reformed Church of Gettysburg, Pa. Later the graves of that cemetery were moved to Citizens Evergreen Cemetery in Gettysburg.

We find the following inscriptions:

"George Hassler died May 24, 1837 in his 79th year."

"Elizabeth Hassler, wife of George, died March 28, 1841, aged 79 years, 4 mos. 28 days."

George was a weaver. In August 1781 he bought four acres of land from his brother Joseph, it being a part of his father's farm. In February 1789 he took up 222 acres of government land, 94 acres of which adjoined the Hassler land, the remaining 128 acres were in the Manor of Springetsbury. He sold this land in 1790. In 1792 he bought 15 acres and 106 perches from Luke Brinkerhof in Straban Tp. York Co. In 1794 he bought from Peter Kurtz 185 acres and 66 perches adjoining. This part of York County was later incorporated in Adams Co. George's land was four miles north-east of Gettysburg. During the Civil War a part of the Battle of Gettysburg was fought on George's farm and it is now included in the historic battlefield.

George Hassler served in the Revolution. He is listed in Capt. George Gieselman's Company in the 7th Battalion of York Co. Militia for the years 1780 and 1782. See page 54.

The will of George Hassler was probated in Gettysburg May 29, 1837. In it he mentions his wife Elizabeth and his children: John, Frederick, George, Henry, Jacob, Christian, Elizabeth, Lydia (probably a granddaughter), and the children of "my deceased son Daniel, viz. George Washington, Jacob, Elizabeth, Jeremiah and Daniel Franklin."

Of the above-mentioned sons John moved to New York State and later to Michigan; George died in York Co., three of his sons moved to Michigan; Frederick went to Stark Co. Ohio; Henry and Jacob remained in Adams Co. Pa.; Christian moved to Libertytown, Maryland. The "deceased son Daniel" died in 1829 when on the way to Ohio. His family settled in Columbiana Co. Ohio, some of them moved later to Kosciusco Co. Indiana and some to Michigan.

It is thought the sons Joseph and Michael died before 1837 without issue, as they are not mentioned in the will.

"There were several branches of the original Hasslers. One branch moved to New York State. I knew three of them, cousins of my father. One Henry Hosler visited us when I was a boy. A cousin of his, Daniel B. Hosler lived nine miles from us in Eaton Rapids, Michigan. He was Justice of the Peace for 28 years. He had one daughter Nettie and a sister much older than himself who married a man named Atkins. He also had a nephew William Hosler who lived with him and who later went to live in Flint, Michigan where a Charles Hosler lived. I believe some of that family still live there. 2. Louisa S. Hossler, born 1831, census 1850; married — Diehl.
3. Amanda C. Hossler, born 1833, census 1850. From record of St. Matthews Congregation, Hanover, York Co. Pa.:

4. Thaddeus Hossler, born 1840, census 1850.
5. Maria Hossler, born 1842, census 1850.

Christian Hossler is listed in censuses of 1830 and 1840 in Mt. Pleasant Tp. Adams Co. Pa. In census of 1850 he is listed with wife Barbara, children as given above in Straban Tp. Adams Co. After 1850 he moved to Maryland. In a letter from Elizabeth Spence written in 1858, she mentions that he is at Libertytown, Md. The records of Deeds at the court-house of Frederick, Md. show he bought land near Libertytown in the year 1854 and again in 1859. This land was called the "Middle Plantation" and was on the road from Libertytown to Frederick.

Christian Hossler died in 1862 and is buried at Libertytown, Md.

The following is taken from a letter owned by Mr. Daniel Franklin Hossler of Tampa, Florida, written April 24, 1858 by Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Spence from her home, which she calls "Mountain Delight" at Pleasant Valley in Adams Co. Pa.

Mary Elizabeth Spence, Lovina Adams and Lydiann Bushy were sisters, their mother having been one of the daughters of George and Elizabeth Roemer Hassler, probably the daughter Elizabeth. The letter does not mention the name of the mother.

The children of Mary Elizabeth Spence were:

1. Harmon Hersh Spence, born 1848
2. Charles Daniel Edwin Spence, born 1850
3. William Henry Spence, born 1852
4. Hanson Lynn Spence, born 1854
5. Lovina Joanna Catherine Spence, born 1857

The sister Lovina was married to William Henry Adams and had four children. They lived in Arntsville in Adams Co. Pa., eight miles from Pleasant Valley.

Lydiann was married to Jacob M. Bushy and had one son: Daniel Bushy, born 1837, who was living in Cumberland Co. Pa.

THE FAMILY OF ABRAHAM HASSLER

Youngest son of Michael Hassler of Codorus Township, York County, Pa.

Sources of information:

Mr. Harry Glatfelder Hassler, York, Pa.

Dr. Robert M. Hosler, 18415 Lynnton Road, Shaker Heights, Cleveland, O.

ABRAHAM HASSLER, fifth and youngest son of Michael and Margreta Hassler of Codorus Tp. York Co. Pa.; baptised Oct. 4, 1761, record of 1st Reformed Church, Philadelphia, Pa.; died May 17, 1803 in Codorus Tp. York Co. Pa. record of Orphans Court, York, Pa. Gravestone not found. Married Christina —.

Christina is buried with her son George in Morrow Co. Ohio in the graveyard of the St. John's Evangelical and Lutheran Church near Johnsville. On her gravestone is the inscription:

"In Memory of Christina wife of Abraham Hosler,
died June 12, 1842
aged 84 years, 5 months and 20 days."

Abraham owned property in Codorus Tp. which after his death was managed by his oldest son Jacob until it was sold Oct. 11, 1843. (See York Deed Book 3U, page 217). The record mentions his heirs: his wife Christina, and children: Jacob, he having sold the property, George B., Magdalen, Catherine and the children of Elizabeth who died in 1835 and who had married Jacob Ruhl. As the children John, Barbara and Christina are not mentioned at the sale of the property, it is thought that they died before 1843 and left no issue.

Issue:—(from Orphan's Court list.)

No marriage record of this Jacob could be found, and no baptismal records of his children. It is thought that he lived on his father's property in Codorus Tp. until it was sold in 1843, and that he then went to Ohio as we find in Morrow County, Ohio, among the deeds that "Jacob Hosler buys a lot in Johnsville in 1860" and "Jacob Hosler sells to Levi Hosler in 1862 in Tp. 21, Morrow Co. PART IV

THE CHRISTIAN HASSLER FAMILY of Rapho Township, Lancaster, County, Pa.

Sources of information:

Mrs. Katherine Shellenberger Hershey, Lancaster, Pa.
Mr. John B. Hassler, Mannheim, Pa.
Mrs. Benjamin Wade, Dayton, Ohio.
Mr. John E. Hassler, Girard, Pa.
Mrs. Charles A. Hassler, Shippensburg, Pa.

CHRISTIAN HASSLER of Rapho Tp., Lancaster Co., Pa.

CHRISTIAN HASSLER of Rapho Tp. Lancaster County, and Michael Hassler of York County both arrived at Philadelphia within a few days of each other, Christian arriving first on September 9th, 1749, Michael arriving on September 28th. Christian came on the Ship "St. Andrew", the same ship which the following summer brought over Abraham Hassler who settled in Cocalico Tp., Lancaster County.

On page 396 of volume I of "Pennsylvania German Pioneers" by Strassburger and Hinke, we find:

"List 128 C at the Statehouse at Philadelphia, Saturday, the 9th September 1749. Present: The Honourable, the Governor. The For- eigners whose Names are underwritten, imported in the Ship St. Andrew, James Abercrombie, Master, from Rotterdam, but last from Plymouth in England, did this day take the usual Qualifications to the Govern- ment. By the List III, Persons 400 Palatines."

In this list of 400 Palatines we find the name of Christian Hassler. As he like many others did not write he signed with a cross. The clerk wrote his name and spelled it according to his own judgement "Christian "Hasseler". The names of the women and children under 16 years were not taken.

It is thought that Christian Hassler of Rapho Tp. Lancaster County may have come from some one of the families of Walkringen, Switzerland and that his father's family had left Switzerland during the days of the religious upheavals. Several of the name Hassler have been mentioned as having lived in what was then the Palatinate as long as a century before this time.

Christian arrived in Philadelphia during the time of the Indian troubles. We first hear of him as having bought an acreage in Rapho Tp. Lancaster Co., not far from the city of Lancaster. On April 17, 1760 he bought 118 acres from John Beaumont, and is listed in the early tax records. Other settlers lived not so far from one another at that time in Lancaster County, and Christian Hassler gave a portion of his land for a community church, a log building which became known throughout the countryside as the Hossler Lutheran Church.

Christian Hassler died in 1784. On March 15, 1793 the son Christian had his father's farm surveyed and patented. On Nov. 1, 1809 he sold it to Jacob Hildman. The church and a portion of land around it were not included in the sale.

Michael Hassler, oldest son of Christian bought back his father's farm in later years, and other land adjoining. He built himself a brick house not far from the church and also a school-house. These are still standing and are on a winding road about three miles out from the town of Mt. Joy. When the original log church became old and in need of repair Michael tore it down and built a new brick church. This building stood until 1869 when a severe storm destroyed it. After that the congregation built a new frame church which they named "Pleasant View".

Not far from Michael's house is the old family burying ground. In it were buried Christian and his wife Elizabeth and many of their children and grandchildren. The earliest graves were of a soft sandstone, some were of flint. Those of sandstone crumbled and the markings have become illegible. Later granite was used.

The will of Christian Hassler was written August 3, 1782 and was probated at Lancaster on March 24, 1784. In it he mentions his wife Elizabeth, his two sons Michael and Christian, his "other sons" and his "children".

Christian Hassler senior is listed in the early tax records of Rapho Tp. Lancaster Co. Pa. for the years 1771, 1772, 1773, 1779, 1782. These are the only available lists taken before the year 1790 and are to be found in Penn. Archives, volume 17 of series 3.

The son Michael served in the Revolution, the other three sons were not old enough to serve.

The children of Christian and Elizabeth Hassler were:

1. Michael Hassler, born June 25, 1754, married Susanna Dielman.
2. Elizabeth Hassler, married David Rollin on Jan. 28, 1783, record of 1st. Reformed Church of Lancaster, Pa.

3. Anna Hassler, married Henry Siechrist on Nov. 30, 1784, record of 1st Ref. Church, Lancaster, Pa. Henry Siechrist is mentioned as administrator of the estate of Jacob Hassler, youngest son of Christian and Elizabeth Hassler, who died in year 1809.

6. Jacob Hassler was killed in an Indian raid in year 1809.

In Penn. Archives, series 6, volume 5, pages 231-299 is a chapter "Dauphin County Militia 1790-1800." On page 246 we find in a list of "the district of Captain John Brubaker's Company of the Battalion of Middle Paxton Militia of Dauphin County", which was the 2nd Battalion of Militia men between the ages of eighteen and forty-five, taken for the year 1794 in the sixth class:

CHRISTIAN HASSLER

son of Christian Sr. and Elizabeth Hassler.

CHRISTIAN HASSLER, son of Christian and Elizabeth Hassler, born in Rapho Tp. Lancaster Co. about the year 1767 (p), was not 21 years old, when his father made his will in 1782. Died in Halifax Tp. Dauphin Co. Pa. about the year 1812. Married on Oct. 11, 1790 Anna Mayer, record of 1st. Reformed Church of Lancaster, Pa.

A Christian Hassler is listed in census of 1790 in Rapho Tp. Lancaster Co. Pa. The census records were supposed to be of heads of families. As Christian was not married until the fall of 1790, and the census list was likely made in the spring, it is thought the Christian Hassler of the census record was not Christian, son of Christian and Elizabeth. It may have been of Christian Hassler, who died in Southampton Tp. Franklin County in 1829. He may have lived in that part of Rapho Tp. which later was incorporated into Manor Tp. where Ludwig Hassler lived, Ludwig being also listed in Rapho Tp. in census of 1790.

It is probable that Christian sold the land which his father willed him in Rapho Tp. to his older brother Michael and then moved to Halifax Tp. Dauphin Co. Pa. We find in the court records that Christian Hassler owned a tract of 250 acres in Halifax Tp. which adjoined the land of Philip Umberger, Stophel Keppel and John Shipley; he also owned another tract of 272 acres adjoining the land of Christopher Gibbel, Barnard Brown and Peter Willard.

From Orphans Court Docket D, page 215, Dauphin Co. Pa. Jan. 14, 1814: "Petition of Jacob Hossler, oldest son of Christian Hossler, who died intestate, leaving a widow since intermarried with James DeArmond and three children of which your petitioner Jacob is the eldest and Michael and Henry, who are minors over the age of 14 years, Christian Hossler owning a tract of land in Halifax Tp. PART V

HASSLER FAMILIES OF BERKS COUNTY

Pennsylvania,

the descendants of the emigrants

JACOB and SEBASTIAN HASSLER

who arrived together

on Ship "Crown"

August 30, 1749.

It is thought that Jacob and Sebastian Hassler came from that part of Switzerland now known as "Baseland" or the Canton of Basel. The authority for this statement has been taken from the second volume of Faust and Brumbaugh's "Lists of Swiss Emigrants to the American Colonies in the 18th Century", in which are given the names of Jacob and Sebastian Hassler as being recorded in the official records of Buus-Maispach which is in the Canton of Basel.

The Canton of Basel is an irregularly shaped district in the north-western part of Switzerland having for its center the well known city of Basel. Directly east of the Canton of Basel is the Canton of Aargau. These cantons were formed from small sovereignties many of which in earlier centuries were independent. In the north-eastern part of the Aargau is the Frickgau or Frick Valley, which for a long period had belonged to the domain of the Hapsburgs. Adjoining the Frickgau was the Sissgau, which was independent, but later became included in the Canton of Basel. In many towns and villages through these sections are Hasler and Hassler families. The archives of the various "Burgermeisters" or Mayors, where baptismal records are kept, show the names of Haslers. In the towns of Buus, Maispach, Gelterkinden, Rothenfluh, Wintersingen, Arisdorf, Sissach and others we find Hasler baptisms from the beginning of the fifteenth century, at which time the Reformed Church made the law that all churches should keep records of the births and deaths of the communicants. The Catholic Church had had such a law, but did not enforce it strictly. Only in special families such as those of the nobility was the baptism kept as a family record. For the most part in Switzerland when a family lived in a locality during the 15th century it can be assumed that they had lived there before that date and probably from the 12th century on, the migrations of families occurring simultaneously with that of small tribes or larger groups of people.

The following copies of baptismal records found in Buus in the Canton of Basel show how many of the name Jacob and Sebastian were born in that locality after 1720. In the passenger list of the Ship "Crown" which arrived in Philadelphia August 30th, 1749 we find the names Hans Jacob, Jacob and Sebastian Hassler.

JACOB AND SEBASTIAN HASSLER
of Berks County, Pa.

That Jacob and Sebastian Hassler were brothers is evidenced by the following:

From "Sowers Newspaper" published in Philadelphia, Pa., June 1, 1751:

"Jacob Haszler, who arrived in this country a year and a half ago inquires for his brother Bastian. Notify Hans Zimmerman, Cocalico, Lancaster Co. Pa."

The above clipping from "Sowers Newspaper" is to be found today in a volume called "Genealogical Data relating to German Settlers of Pennsylvania and Adjacent Territory, compiled from advertisements in German Newspapers of Philadelphia from years 1743 to 1800" published by Edward Hocker, librarian of the Germantown Historical Society.

In the sailing lists published in Pennsylvania Archives, series 2 volume 17, also in the lists given in "Pennsylvania German Pioneers" by Strassburger and Hinke, volume 1, page 392, we find that Hans Jacob Hasler, Jacob Hassler and Sebastian Hassler all three sailed on Ship "Crown" from Rotterdam arriving at Philadelphia August 30th, 1749. On page 391 of Volume 1, Strassburger and Hinke:

"List 125 C at the Court House at Philadelphia, Wednesday, 30th August, 1749. Present the Honourable James Hamilton, Esquire, Governor, and Joshua Maddox, Esquire. The foreigners whose names are underwritten, imported in the Ship "Crown," Michael James, Master, from Rotterdam and last from Cowes in England, did this day take the usual Qualifications to the Government. Switzers, Number 500 or 476."

Also in the 2nd volume of "Lists of Swiss Emigrants in the 18th Century to the American Colonies" by Faust and Brumbaugh we find the following:

Jacob Hassler, wife Maria Marklin, listed among the emigrants to America with three small children whose baptisms are also given:

Jacob Hassler, baptised Feb. 28, 1745, record of office of Rothenfluh, Switzerland.

Johannes Hassler, baptised Dec. 13, 1746, record of office of Rothenfluh, Switzerland.

Eva Hassler, baptised Nov. 17, 1748, record of office of Rothenfluh, Switzerland.

(Rothenfluh is in the Canton of Basel, in the same vicinity with Buus.)

Sebastian Hassler, wife Barbara Degen and one child "twelve weeks old, (their son Frederick), listed among the emigrants to America in the 18th century.

In "Pennsylvania Archives", series 6, volume 6 in the chapter entitled "Marriages and Baptisms of Rev. John Waldschmidt" we find the names of those children baptised between the years 1752 and 1786 by the Rev. John Waldschmidt who was Pastor at that time of the Reformed Churches of Cocalico Township, Lancaster County, and the adjoining Heidelberg Township, Berks County, which later was split into two parts, the more western part forming Heidelberg Township, Lebanon County. There were three Reformed churches in this district, which were within a few miles of each other, the Swamp Reformed of Cocalico Tp. Lancaster County, and across the border the Hain's Reformed of Heidelberg Tp. and St. Daniel's Church also at that time in Heidelberg Tp. Berks County. Here we find the names of Jacob and Sebastian Hassler:

"On Feb. 11, 1756 Jacob Hassler and wife Anna Maria were sponsors at the baptism of Jacob Hoffer, son of Johannes Hoffer."

"On Jan. 30, 1756 Jacob Hassler and wife Anna Maria were sponsors at the baptism of Anna M. Billing."

"On Nov. 27, 1762 Bastian Hassler and wife were sponsors at the baptism of Anna Barbara Schaffner, daughter of Heinrich Schafner."

"On April 3, 1774 forty persons were baptised at Holy Communion at Michael Amweg's, among whom were three sons of Sebastian Hassler."

"Jacob Hassler, Maria Hassler and Sophia Hassler, all three, children of Sebastian Hassler were sponsors at the baptism of Sophia Chox on Dec. 24, 1780."

"On Aug. 10, 1783 Sebastian Hassler sr. and wife Barbara were sponsors at the baptism of Sebastian, son of Stephen and Margaretha Katzemayer Hassler, record of Hain's Church.

JACOB AND SEBASTIAN HASSLER

After his arrival in this country Sebastian Hassler bought land in Heidelberg Township, Berks Co. Pa. No deed for its purchase can be found. We have been able to collect data concerning his family mainly from the baptismal records kept by the Rev. John Waldschmidt, which are still preserved in the original script, and translations of which are to be found in "Pennsylvania Archives", a work of many volumes on early Pennsylvania history. Rev. John Waldschmidt was the Pastor of the Reformed Churches of Heidelberg Township and the surrounding townships having been installed in the year 1752. It is from his records and from the tax and Revolution records that we are able to gather some information concerning Sebastian's family as they continued living in the same general locality for several decades. Some of the descendants still live at Wernersville, Pa.

Jacob Hassler seems to have been of a more roving disposition than his brother Sebastian. In the Land Office at Harrisburg we find that a Jacob Hostler bought land in Hellam Tp. York Co. Pa. in the year 1751. In 1762 we find in the deeds of Frederick County, Maryland (Book H, Folio I) Jacob Hostler sold to James Smith a tract of land containing 110 acres, called "Jacob's Ladder".

His son Jacob Jr., born in 1745 in Switzerland seems to have lived in Maryland for many years. The son Johannes born in 1746 in Switzerland is listed in the early tax records of Earl Township, Berks Co. Pa.

After 1790 Jacob Sr. and his wife are to be found in Letterkenney Tp. Franklin Co. Pa. That is north and not a great distance from Washington County, Maryland, where the son Jacob Jr. was living. In the census of 1800 we find Jacob Hastler listed in Letterkenney Tp. Franklin County as over 45 years old, living with 2 F over 45 years old.

This we think is Jacob Hassler Sr. After this census we find no further trace of him. It is likely that he and his wife died in Letterkenney Tp. after 1800. He would then have been over 70 years old.

The son Jacob Jr. born 1745 in Switzerland seems also to have moved about from place to place. In the census of 1790 we find him listed in Washington County, Maryland, as over 16 years of age, living with 1 M. over 16 and 2 F. Ages in this early census are not given other than "over 16" and "under 16". We also find in Pennsylvania Archives, series 3, volume 25, page 539 that on April 19, 1794 a Jacob Hostler bought 400 acres of land in Bedford County, Pa. At that time many of the original settlers in these parts had been killed by the Indians. There were land speculators who collected the deeds of those who had died and sold them to anyone who wished to buy. In this manner a great deal of land changed hands, the new owner not even having to see the land. In the census of 1800 this same Jacob, born 1745, is listed again in Lower Antietam Hundred, Washington Co. Md. as over 45 years old, born before 1755, his wife also over 45 years old, and living with

1 M	26-45 years old,	born	1755-1774
1 F	26-45	" "	1755-1774
1 M	under 10	" "	1790-1800
1 F	under 10	" "	1790-1800

After 1800 it is possible that our Jacob Jr., went to Ohio as a "History of Canton and Stark County, Ohio" by John Danner, edition of 1904 states that the township in Stark County called "Plain Township" was organized and had its first election in the year 1809, and that the name "Jacob Hostler" appears in a list of about twenty heads of families who had come into the township between 1805 and 1812. Unfortunately census records were not taken in Ohio until 1830. We therefore find nothing more of our Jacob Jr. As the name did not continue on in Maryland after 1800 it is possible that he or his sons did move to Ohio. It is to be regretted that more accurate details can not be found of the interesting movements of our pioneers Jacob Hassler and his son Jacob Jr.

In the following pages the writer has attempted to give the children of Jacob Hassler Sr. and their families. They have been arranged almost entirely from census records. There may be inaccuracies and some parts are more or less suppositional.

Issue (p):—

1. Abraham, born 1794-1804. Listed census 1820 in Washington Tp. Franklin Co. Pa., living with brothers
3 M born 1800-1810.

NOTE: After preparing the above list the writer was pleased to come upon the following record in Penn. Archives, series 6, vol. 3, page 86:

In a list of the Militia of Upper Bern Tp. Berks Co. Pa. under Colonel Gehr in Capt. Jacob Schendel's Company, which was being made up on the 4th of May 1784 are the names

Mich'l Hassler in the 4th class and Christian Hassler in the 6th class.

This is the only record of a Michael and Christian other than the Michael in the census of 1800 in Cocalico Tp. Lancaster Co. and the death record of Christian in 1827 in Southampton Tp. Franklin Co. Pa. This helps to verify the idea that there were a Michael and a Christian in Berks County, who are not to be confused with the Michael and Christian of York and of Lancaster Counties. They may have been brothers and the sons of Jacob the emigrant as listed above.

HENRY HASSLER, of Troy Tp. Morrow Co. Ohio.

There is no proof as to the parentage of Henry Hassler, born 1795, living in Troy Tp. Morrow Co. O. It is thought he may have been a son of John Hassler 1755-1774, of the census of 1800 of Letterkenney Tp. Franklin Co. Pa.

Census of 1850 of Troy Tp. Morrow Co. Ohio lists Henry Hassler born 1795 in Pa., a minister, Wife Rebecca — born 1803 in Ohio.

JOHANNES HASSLER

son of Jacob Sr. and Maria Märklin Hassler.

JOHANNES HASSLER, son of Jacob and Maria Märklin Hassler, baptised Dec. 13, 1746, record of civic office of Rothenfluh in the Canton of Basel, Switzerland, record found in the "Swiss Emigrants to America in the 18th Century, by Faust and Brumbaugh, volume 2.

Johannes Hassler is listed in the early tax records of Earl Tp. Berks Co. Pa. for the years 1779-1790 inclusive, see Penn. Archives, 3rd series, volume 18, pages 300, 429, 557, 610 and 736:

(West District Township became Earl Township in year 1781.)

Johannes Hassler of Earl Tp. Berks Co. is not to be confused with John Hassler, son of Sebastian, born 1767, who is listed in census of 1790 in Heidelberg Tp. Berks Co. and who went to Hocking Co. Ohio about 1820.

It is thought that Johannes Hassler born 1746 died in Earl Tp. Berks Co. Wife Anna Margaret —.

Issue:—

1. George Hassler, born 1766. Record of St. Michael's and Zion's Lutheran Church, Philadelphia, Pa.: "October 6, 1766, — Georg, infant son of Johan Hasler and his wife Anna Margaretha, new comers, was buried in the common ground."
2. Philip and Barbara Hassler, twins, born December 1768, record of Hill Church, which is near the city of Lebanon, Lebanon County, at that time in Lancaster Co.: "To John Hassler and wife Anna Margaret, twins, Philip and Mary Barbara, born December 1768, baptised April 23, 1769, sponsors: John Philip Hartman and wife Anna Eva."
4. (p) Jacob Hosler, born 1775-1794. Listed census of 1820 in Montgomery Tp. Franklin Co. Pa.
5. (p) John Hassler of Amity Tp. Berks Co. Pa. Listed in war of 1812, see Penn. Archives, 6th series, vol. 8, page 1065: "John Hosler, a private in Capt. Jeremiah Rees's Company of the 5th Battalion, 2nd Brigade, performing a tour of duty under command of Major McFarland who rendezvoused at York under general order of the Governor dated August 26, 1814. Residence Amety, Berks Co. Pa." May be the John Hassler of the record "John Hassler and Catherine Frey married Dec. 19, 1809, 1st Reformed Church, York, Pa. No other record available.

(List likely incomplete.)

NOTE:—There is a question whether the above Johannes of Earl Tp. Berks Co., Pa. is the same as Johannes, born Dec. 13, 1746, son of Jacob and Maria Marklin Hassler. In the sailing lists (page 41) there is a John Hasler, who arrived in Philadelphia on Ship "Chance" Sept. 23, 1766. In the record "Georg, son of Johan Hasler and his wife Anna Margaretha, new comers, was buried in the common ground Oct. 6, 1766" the word "newcomers" may mean new arrivals in this country and this Johan and his wife Anna Margaretha may be the ones who later journeyed to Berks Co., Pa. and who are listed there in the tax records of Earl Tp. in the years 1779-1790, and who also are the parents of the twins Philip and Barbara born in December 1768.

LUDWIG HASSLER
of Rapho Tp. Lancaster Co. Pa.

It can not be determined to which of the Hasler families Ludwig Hassler of the 1790 census of Rapho Tp. Lancaster Co. Pa. belonged. It is thought he may have been a son of Sebastian of Berks County or of his brother Jacob. It is also possible that he was a son of one of the other Haslers who arrived in this country somewhat later than Sebastian and Jacob. These latter were Henry Hassler, who arrived on the ship "President" September 27, 1752 and John Hasler, who arrived on the ship "Chance" September 23, 1766. It is thought that Henry and John were brothers of Sebastian and Jacob as there is a tradition that four brothers came over to this country, this information having been given by Mr. James L. Hosler of San Gabriel, Cal.

Ludwig Hassler is listed in the census of 1790 in Rapho Tp. Lancaster Co. Pa. He does not belong in the family of Christian Hassler of Rapho Tp. It is thought that Martha Hostler listed in the census of 1820 in Manor Tp. Lancaster Co. was his wife and that Ludwig died before 1820.

Census of 1790 lists Ludwig in Rapho Tp. as head of a family with wife, two M under 16, born 1774-1790 and two F.

Probable issue:—

1. Leonard Hostler, born 1775-1794; is listed in census of 1820 in Mt. Joy Tp. Lancaster Co. Pa. as between 26 and 45 years old, wife same age, living with

 - 2 F -10 " " " 1810-1820
 - 1 M -10 " " " 1810-1820
2. John Hostler, who went to Blair Co. Pa.; born 1781, date given in History of Blair Co. Pa.; wife Mary.

Martha Hostler thought to have been the wife of Ludwig, listed in census of 1820 in Manor Tp. Lancaster Co. Pa. as over 45 years old, living with 3 F 16-26 years old, born 1794-1804.

Manor Township was formed from Rapho Township. It is thought that Ludwig lived in that part of Rapho Tp. which after 1790 became Manor Township.

LEONARD HOSTLER, (p) son of Ludwig and Martha Hassler, born 1775-1794; is listed in census of 1820 in Mt. Joy Tp. Lancaster Co. Pa. as 26-45 years old, wife same age,

Mr. James Leander Hosler of San Gabriel, Cal. grandson of Heinrich Hosler writes:

"In 1832 Heinrich Hosler moved from Franklin Co. Pa. to Ohio. He made the journey in a one-horse wagon taking with him his wife and five small children. He took up the west half of the n.w. quarter-section of Jackson Tp. Seneca County. Up to that time there had not been more than a half-dozen settlers in the township. The land was thickly timbered with hardwood forests of virgin growths. Heinrich made a clearing and built a cabin with logs hewn from the forest trees. It was not uncommon to fence in the clearings with walnut rails, and barns were often sided with walnut boards. In later years high prices were paid for these walnut sidings.

"There was a small tribe of Indians living in the township, who were said to have killed in that summer 110 deer, 10 bears and quantities of small game. They disappeared at the close of the summer and did not return.

"On June 1, 1833 Heinrich took up half of the n.e. quarter-section of Liberty Tp. Seneca Co. Here he built a large two-story house, which was his residence until his death in 1860. The U. B. Church has since been erected on the n.e. corner of his farm."

SAMUEL HASSLER, son of Sebastian Jr.

SAMUEL HASSLER, son of Sebastian Jr., and Anna Krummer Hassler, born about 1785. Wife Elizabeth —, name given in deeds of Mifflin Co. Pa.: Book P. page 291, Dec. 2, 1822, "Samuel Hostler and Elizabeth his wife sell to James Louthier a tract of land in Lack Tp. Mifflin Co., bounded by lands of Frederick Hostler, Wm. Christy, Hugh Gardner and others, containing 137 acres and 31 perches."

Is listed in census of 1820 in Milford Tp. Mifflin Co. as 26-45 years old, born 1775-1794, "engaged in agriculture", wife same age, born 1775-1794, living with

2 M -10 years old, born 1810-1820
2 F -10 " " " 1810-1820

It is thought that Samuel Hostler, son of Sebastian Jr., and his younger brother George went to Ohio after 1820, that Samuel is listed in the census of 1840 in Newton Tp. Muskingum Co. Ohio as between 70 and 80 years old, born 1760-1780, living with (wife not mentioned)

1 M 20-30 years old, born 1810-1820
1 M 15-20 " " " 1820-1825
1 M 10-15 " " " 1825-1830
1 F 5-10 " " " 1830-1835
1 M 5-10 " " " 1830-1835

In same census, 1840, in Springfield Tp. Muskingum Co. O. is George Hastler, 20-30 years old, born 1810-1820, wife same age, born 1810-1820, living with

1 M - 5 years old, born 1835-1840
1 F - 5 " " " 1835-1840

From census of 1850 of Muskingum Co., we find those who we think are the sons of Samuel Hastler of Muskingum Co. O.:

1. George Hastler, born 1814 in Pa.; wife Ann.
Issue:—
 1. Thomas Hastler, born 1837 in Ohio
 2. Elizabeth Hastler, born 1838 in Ohio
 3. Mary L. Hastler, born 1841 in Ohio
 4. Sarah E. Hastler, born 1845 in Ohio
 5. Theodore Hastler, born 1849 in Ohio
2. John Hastler, (Brushcreek Tp.) born 1815 in Pa., wife Nancy.
Issue:—
 1. Charles W. Hastler, born 1843 in Ohio
 2. Nancy E. Hastler, born 1847 in Ohio
 3. Samuel J. Hastler, born 1850 in Ohio
3. Samuel Hastler, born 1820 in Pa. (Springfield Tp.); wife Sarah, born 1820 in Ohio. No issue.
4. Alexander Hastler of 1850 census of Hardin Co. O. (p) (Liberty Tp.)

In census of 1850 in Liberty Tp. Hardin Co., Ohio, we find: Samuel Hastler, 70 years old, born 1780 in Pa., living with Sarah Hastler, 50 years old, born 1800 in Pa. Alexander Hastler 38 years old, born 1822 in Pa., wife Anna Maria 37 years old, born in 1823 in Ohio.

Issue of Alexander and Anna Maria Hastler:

1. Martha A. Hastler, born 1851 in Ohio
2. Sarah L. Hastler, born 1854 in Ohio
3. Samuel G. Hastler, born 1856 in Ohio

There is nothing to prove that the Samuel, son of Sebastian Jr., of the 1820 census of Mifflin Co. Pa. and the Samuel of 1840 of Muskingum Co. Ohio and the Samuel of 1850 of Hardin Co. O. are the same person.

We find no further record of Samuel in Pa. after 1820. The part of Mifflin Co. which included Milford, Turbett, Beale, Tuscarora and Lack Townships became incorporated later in a part of Juniata County. In the census of 1870 in Lack Tp. Juniata Co. we find Margaret Hostler, 18 years old, born 1852 living in the home of John Patterson. This we think is Margaret, daughter of Joseph and Barbara of Milford Tp. Samuel had lived in Lack Tp. as we find among the deeds that "Samuel and Frederick Hassler buy May 28, 1814 a tract of land situated in Lack Tp. from Samuel McIntyre, formerly belonging to John Cook, containing 322 acres and 11 perches."

In deeds of Crawford Co. O., at Bucyrus:

"John Hosler of Muskingum Co. O. buys 80 acres at Bucyrus November 3, 1838."

Spelling "Hastler" is used in both 1840 and 1850 censuses of Muskingum and Hardin Counties.

GEORGE HASSLER, son of Sebastian Jr.

GEORGE HASSLER, youngest son of Sebastian Jr. and Ann Krummer Hassler, "in his minority in the year 1813" May be the George Hassler listed in Venice Tp. Seneca Co. Ohio in census of 1850 as born 1795 in Pa., a millwright; wife Hannah.

Issue:—

1. John Hassler, born 1824 in Pa.
2. George Hassler, born 1829 in Pa.
3. Henry Hassler, born 1831 in Pa.
4. Samuel Hassler, born 1833 in Pa.
5. Elizabeth Hassler, born 1836 in Ohio
6. David Hassler, born 1839 in Ohio
7. Sarah Hassler, born 1842 in Ohio
8. Christian Hassler, born 1841 in Ohio

In deeds of Seneca Co. "George Hossler" buys in Adams Tp. Seneca Co. Sept. 17, 1831.

ABRAHAM HASSLER of Cocalico Tp. Lancaster Co. Pa.

The records found in Switzerland concerning Abraham Hassler, who settled in Cocalico Tp. Lancaster Co. Pa. and who died there in the year 1765 are unusual, as Abraham and his father Jacob before leaving home had obtained a permit from the civic authorities to leave.

From "Lists of Swiss Emigrants in the 18th Century to the American Colonies", by Faust and Brumbaugh, volume 2, we find:

"Berne, Switzerland:

"According to the reports of some members of the commune, there emigrated to America in April 1750 from Oberhünigen, in the parish of Wyl, (in the Canton of Bern) Jacob Hassler with his daughter Susanna, his son Abraham and wife and also Hans Scheurer from the same commune. The latter wrote to his father June 1st, 1750 from Rotterdam, saying that they had arrived there safely and would sail for America on June 3rd."

In the summer of 1934 the writer visited Oberhünigen in the Canton of Bern, found that the baptismal records of the parish were kept at the Bürgermeister's office in Schlosswyl, a larger town not far from Oberhünigen, and which we reached in a short time by taxi. After studying many heavy volumes written in German script, copies of the old original records, we came upon the following information concerning Abraham Hassler and his father Jacob:

ABRAHAM HASSLER of Wyl in the Canton of Bern went to America with his wife, his sister and his father. His father was Jacob Hassler of the following record:

"Jacob Hassler married Magdalena Byeland of Schintznach in the Canton of Aargau. Their children were:

Susanna Hassler, baptised in Moenthal, Canton of Bern, on May 27, 1725,

Abraham Hassler, baptised in Moenthal, Canton of Bern, on Sept. 21, 1727, Hans Hassler, baptised in Moenthal, Canton of Bern on Dec. 31, 1730."

In this same record was a note that Jacob Hassler with his son Abraham and his daughter Susanna had left the commune to sail for America and that "his wife Catherine (Linder)" had stayed at home. From this we infer that Catherine Linder Hassler was Jacob's second wife, that Jacob together with his son Abraham and his daughter Susanna both by his first wife Magdalena Byeland had left Oberhünigen in the parish of Wyl to sail for America. It was the custom in those days when one wished to leave the commune for foreign parts to obtain a permit to leave. Accordingly we find the record that Jacob with Abraham and Susanna had left.

Searching farther we found also the following baptismal record of the child of Abraham Hassler born in Wyl and in time to make the voyage to America:

"Maria Hassler, baptised in Wyl Feb. 2, 1749, daughter of Abraham Hassler and his wife Magdalena Neunschwander, witnesses Maria Hertzberger Hassler and Elsbeth Hassler of Wyl."

According to the statement in Faust and Brumbaugh's "Lists of Swiss Emigrants etc." volume 2, Hans Scheurer writes his father that their party arrived safely in Rotterdam. They were Jacob Hassler, his son Abraham with wife and child Maria, his daughter Susanna and also Hans Scheurer, who wrote the letter to his father.

In the sailing lists of "Pennsylvania Archives" given in series 2, volume 17, also on page 434 of "Pennsylvania German Pioneers", volume I, of Strassburger and Hinke we find that they sailed on the Ship "St Andrew" from Rotterdam, Captain Robert Brown and that they docked at Philadelphia on August 18th, 1750, and qualified at the Court-House on August 18th, 1850. "List 150 C", "Present Thomas Lawrence, Esquire, Mayor. The foreigners whose names are underwritten, imported in the Ship "St. Andrew", Capt. Robert Brown, from Rotterdam and Cowes in England, did this day take and subscribe the usual Oaths. 102 by list, 279 persons." Jacob and his son Abraham not being able to write made their crosses, the clerk writing their names as they appear in the list, Jacob Haassler, Abraham Hasseler. Hans Scheurer was able to write and spells his name as it should be spelled, Hans Scheurer.

Of the father Jacob Hassler no further record can be found. On March 20th, 1755 his son Abraham took out a warrant for 20 acres of land in Cocalico Tp. Lancaster County, Pa. according to the Land Office in Harrisburg. When surveyed it was found to contain 77 acres. He also bought land in Bethel Tp. then in Lancaster County, now in Lebanon County, on October 10, 1756.

It is interesting to note here that the child Maria, daughter of Abraham and his wife Magdalena Neunschwander Hassler lived through the difficult voyage on the Ship St. Andrew, and grew up in Cocalico Tp. Lancaster County. She later married Thomas Gray of Lancaster County, and when her father died in Cocalico Tp. in the year 1765 she and her husband Thomas Gray sign a document of the receipt of her inheritance of a part of her father's estate. No will can be found made by Abraham Hassler, but the receipt of her inheritance is recorded in Deed Book "B B" in the Lancaster Court-House, and the executors of Abraham's estate were "Michael Brunner and John".

Abraham Hassler had seven children that we know of, the one daughter Maria born in Wyl in the Canton of Bern, 1749 and six other children born between the years 1757 and 1765. It is probable that the wife Magdalena Neunschwander died shortly after arriving in America, as the mother's name given in the baptismal records in Cocalico Tp. is "Anna". The Rev. John Waldschmidt had been installed in 1752 as Pastor of the Reformed churches of Cocalico and surrounding townships and it is from the records kept by him of baptisms in the church parishes, and which are still to be found in the various church records and which are also published in "Pennsylvania Archives" and translated in series 6, volume 6, in a chapter called "Marriages and Baptismal Records" of Rev. John Waldschmidt, it is from these records that we are able to make a list of the children of Abraham Hassler of Cocalico Tp. Lancaster Co. Pa., which is as follows:

ABRAHAM HASSLER, son of Jacob and Magdalen Byeland Hassler, born Sept. 21, 1727 in Moenthal, parish of Wyl, Canton of Bern, Switzerland; sailed for America on Ship "St. Andrew", arrived at Philadelphia August 18, 1750, bought land in Lancaster County in Cocalico and Bethel Townships in 1755 and 1756; married (1) in Switzerland Magdalena Neunschwander.

Issue:—

1. Maria Hassler, baptised Feb. 2, 1749, record of Schlosswyl, Canton of Bern, Switzerland; married Thomas Gray.

Married (2) in Pennsylvania "Anna" —.

Issue:—

2. Johann Casper Hassler, baptised Sept. 25, 1757 by Rev. John Waldschmidt, record of Swamp Reformed Church Cocalico Tp. Lancaster Co. Pa., sponsors Casper Kabel and wife. See Penn archives series 6, vol 6.
3. Abraham Hassler, Jr., "son of Abraham", baptised Jan. 29, 1759 by Rev. John Waldschmidt, record of Swamp Reformed Church, Cocalico Tp. Lancaster Co. Pa.; married Catherine Waldschmidt, dau. of Rev. John Waldschmidt.
4. Maria Magdalena Hassler, baptised Sept. 24, 1760 by Rev. John Stover, record of Swamp Reformed Church. Contained in Penn. Archives, vol. 6, series 6.
5. Anna Catherine Hassler, baptised March 10, 1761, by Rev. John Waldschmidt, sponsors: Philip Jacob and his wife Elizabeth, record Penn. Archives.
6. Anna Barbara Hassler, baptised May 12, 1763 by Rev. John Waldschmidt, sponsors: Georg Siegethaler and wife. Married Wilhelm Waldschmidt, son of Rev. Waldschmidt, on March 7, 1787. See Penn Archives.
7. Anna Susanna Hassler, born Oct. 17, 1765, baptised Feb. 9, 1766 "after her father's death", record of Swamp Reformed Church, Cocalico Tp. Lanc. Co. Sponsors: Georg Brunner and wife. Married Johannes Waldschmidt, son of Rev. John Waldschmidt on Dec. 19, 1786.

"Susanna Hassler Waldschmidt died Sept. 28, 1813; Johannes Waldschmidt died Oct. 16, 1815, aged 51 years, 11 mos. and 7 days."

It is probable that Abraham Hassler Sr., his two wives and his father Jacob were buried in the old graveyard of Swamp Reformed Church in Cocalico Tp. Lancaster County, Pa. The gravestones at that early time were made from a soft brown sandstone, which unfortunately have now crumbled away, so that any markings on them are quite illegible.

REV. JOHN WALDSCHMIDT.

JOHANNES WALDSCHMIDT, son of John Henry and Christina Appollonia Weller Waldschmidt, born Aug. 6, 1724 in Dillenburg, Nassau, Germany, one of eight children; died at Swamp, Cocalico Tp. Lancaster Co. Pa. Sept. 14, 1786; is buried in Swamp Church Cemetery.

Johannes Waldschmidt was educated for the ministry, and came as one of the earliest Christian missionaries into eastern Pennsylvania. On Oct. 22, 1752 he was installed pastor of the following churches:

The congregation of Cocalico, since called the Swamp Reformed Church; Weiseichenland, then called Sebastian Reicher's Church; Modecreek and Zeltenreich churches. He was pastor of Tulpehocken Church also for two years from 1756 to 1758. He was for several years at the Heidelberg Church until 1770 when that church joined with the Reading church.

The Cocalico congregation was the predecessor and mother congregation of the Bethany Church near Ephrata, Lancaster Co. the latter probably included Reicher's or Royer's Church, which has ceased to exist as a separate congregation. Reicher's was also called Zion's Church, and the Cocalico Church was also called Kellar's Church. The Cocalico Congregation has the Protocol Book of Kellar's and Royer's, which fact would favor the theory that it was the successor of both churches. The Bethany Congregation has since moved to Ephrata, using the old Bethany church only for funeral occasions, the older burying ground being there. The Reicher's Church had a Huguenot element in it.

Peter Hassler owned the old Duncan mill on Falling Spring. In a paper written for the Kittochtinney Historical Society by B. L. Maurer called "The Falling Spring", published in K. H. S. Papers, volume 1898-1903, page 210-216, Mr. Maurer describes the stream called "Falling Spring", which one meets and crosses about eleven miles north-east of Greencastle. It empties into the Conococheague Creek, which in turn flows into the waters of the Potomac. Mr. Maurer says "It is one of the busiest and most useful streams in southern Pa. It supplies more water than the romantic Conococheague, and its flow is regular and never failing. It rises about four miles north-east of Greencastle. Before it is an hour old it begins its industrial career by turning the burrs and chopper of the old Duncan mill, now owned by Peter Hassler."

A picture of the Hassler mill is on page 467 of volume 1922-1929 of the Kittochtinny Historical Papers.

"One of the most interesting church organizations of Montgomery County, Pa. was first known as the "Old Yellow Church". It was built in 1787. The old graveyard is still there. From 1856 to 1862 its pastor was the Rev. John Waldschmidt Hassler. At the outbreak of the Civil War he resigned the pastorate to accept an appointment as chaplain of the army. In 1867 the congregation built a new church. It was dedicated Jan. 1, 1870 and the sermon was preached by the Rev. John Waldschmidt Hassler.

THE CANTON OF AARGAU From Encyclopedia Britannica.

The castle of Habichtsburg (Habsburg, Hapsburg), "hawk's castle", was situated on the Aar river not far from its junction with the Rhein. The region is now within the canton of Aargau. The castle was built about 1020 by Werner, bishop of Strassbourg, and his brother Radbot, founder of the Abbey of Muri. These men were grandsons of Guntram, whose ancestry according to some authorities can be traced back to the time of the Merovingian kings. Among Radbot's sons was one Werner, who was called Count of Habsburg. His son Otto, also Count of Habsburg, became Landgraf of Alsace late in the 11th or early in the 12th century. Another of Werner's sons, Albert, became Count of Zurich. He was protector of the monastery of Säkingen, and obtained lands in the canton of Unterwalden and Luzerne. It was his son Rudolph who assisted Frederick of Hohenstaufen, Frederick II, against the Emperor Otto II, and for his services received the county of Aargau. He died in 1232. This Rudolph's brother was Landgraf of Alsace. He married Hedwig of Kyburg and from this union was born in 1218 Rudolph, who was the first of the family to ascend the German throne. He was made king in 1273. He defeated the King of Bohemia Ottakar II and as a result took the duchies of Austria and Styria. The center of authority was then transferred from the Rhein to the Danube.

In 1415 the Aargau region was taken from the Habsburgs by the Swiss Confederates. Bern kept the south-west portion of it, which included Zofingen, Aarburg, Aarau, Lezburg and Brugg. But some districts were named Freie Ämter and with the county of Baden were ruled as subject lands by all or certain of the Confederates. In 1798 the Bernese part became the Canton of Aargau of the Helvetic Republic, the remainder forming the Canton of Baden. In 1803 both these cantons plus the Frick glen, which had been ceded by Austria in 1802 to the Helvetic Republic, were united under the Canton of Aargau, which was then admitted as a full member of the reconstituted Confederation.

FERDINAND RUDOLF HASSLER

1st. U. S. Coast surveyor.

The family of Ferdinand Rudolf Hassler lived in the city of Aarau in the Canton of Aargau, Switzerland. The founder of the family was a Martin Hassler, who came to Aarau in June 1588. He came from Wyl and was called "Martin, the miller, from Wyl".

There has been some question as to where Wyl was, whether it was Wyl in the Canton of Bern or whether it was Wolflißwyl in the Frickgau or Frick valley, which at that time was outside of Switzerland and belonged to the domain of the Hapsburgs. The genealogist G. Schmidt-Hagnauer states that Martin came from Wyl in the Canton of Bern near Koppingen. But another genealogist, Hammeler by name thinks that he came from Wolflißwyl in the Frick valley. Martin Hassler became a citizen of Aarau on June 17, 1588 upon payment of 40 Gulden and 3 Gulden "Reisegeld" or travelling money. Herr Hammeler says that 40 Gulden was the price required of foreigners, that if Martin had come from Canton of Bern he would have been assessed only half the amount, that it is more likely that he came from Wolflißwyl in the Frick valley. He found also that there were other Hasslers living at that time in other parts of the Frick valley. He mentions a Uhlrich Hasler from Biberstein who was a witness June 19, 1556 in Kirschberg, both of which places are in the Frick valley. The name Hassler was found in Biberstein, Gauenstein and Schupfart, all of which are in the Frick valley.

Wolflißwyl in the Frick valley was a two-hours walk from the city of Aarau, and lies directly north of it. It is now in the Canton of Aargau and is very close to the border line of the Canton of Basel and not far from Sissach, Gelterkinden and Rothenfluh, where so many Hasslers lived and from where Jacob and Sebastian Hassler came to America two hundred years after Martin went to Aarau.

The following genealogy of the descendants of Martin Hassler of Aarau has been obtained from Mrs. Anita Newcomb McGee, it having been sent to her by the genealogist Herr G. Schmidt-Hagnauer of Aarau in the year 1886. He copied the records of the church books of Aarau and also studied a genealogy previously written of the Hassler family by a man named Rychner. The Rychner Genealogy was owned by Herr August Rothplatz of Aarau.

MARTIN HASSLER
of Aarau, Canton of Aargau, Switzerland.

MARTIN HASSLER, by trade a miller, was made a citizen of Aarau on June 17, 1588 on payment of 40 Gulden and 3 Gulden "Reisegeld" or travelling money. He came from the parish of Wyl. There is a record of Martin's being "regimentsfähig" or eligible for military service. He held the office of "Gotteshausschaffner", officer of the church in 1657, and "Spitalvogt", head of the hospital in 1664. There is no record of his death. He married Elizabeth Senn in the year 1586 and had children as follows:—

1. Jacob Hassler, born 1587; baptised Dec. 15, 1588; died in 1627; married Anna Gysi.

9. Elizabeth Hassler, baptised April 13, 1600
10. Sarah Hassler, baptised April 3, 1603.

Martin Hassler was owner of a tavern in Aarau called "Zum Wilden Mann". The Rychner genealogy claims that the tavern was owned by Hans Hassler, who may have been Martin's son. Mrs. McGee stopped there when she was in Aarau in the 1880s. It was then a fine inn and had the same name "Zum Wilden Mann".

Was a graduate of the University of Berlin, and also studied at the Universities of Gotha, Gottingen, Cassel and Paris. He was an engineer. He surveyed many parts of Switzerland, having been appointed to the task by the Government. He made the boundary survey between Switzerland and France, doing this work at his own expense. This boundary was later surveyed by Napoleon, who claimed that the line was on French soil, but the stone markers that had been placed by Ferdinand Hassler were never removed.

He later became a member of the Swiss Senate, also served as Attorney-General of the Canton of Aargau, and wrote the Constitution of the Canton.

He came to America in 1805. He was made Professor of Mathematics at West Point. Here he made life-long friendships with eminent scientific men of the country.

From 1807 dates the beginning of his life work, the founding of the "U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey". After many interruptions during which different positions were held, after a journey to Europe, and "in spite of oppositions and trials that would have daunted a less brave and independent spirit", he succeeded in establishing the Coast Survey on a permanent basis. This was in 1832.

He also perfected the system of weights and measures now in use in the U. S. He was Superintendent of the U. S. Coast Survey and was Chief of the Bureau of Weights and Measures until his death in 1843.
